MARVELLOUS MARINER SNAPS MARS

From UPI, AP

PASADENA, Calif.—Marvellous Mariner 4 sent Earth its first closeup snapshot of the mysterious planet Mars, and began transmitting a second picture Thursday.

A fantastically weak but steady stream of radio signals carried the photograph bit-by-bit more than 134,000,000 miles through space — a process so delicate it took 8 hours, 35 minutes to transmit a single picture.

Within minutes, a project spokesman said, "We can confirm—repeat confirm—that contrast is being seen" in the early lines of the second photograph.

It was taken from an altitude of 10,500 miles and showed an area about 200 miles square. An enlargement showed a triangular area in the desert's center.

There were several smudges, or blotchy areas.

HISTORIC PHOTO

Dr. R. B. Leighton describing the historic first photo at a press conference Thursday night in the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, said scientists expect to have difficulties with the Mariner pictures because:

● "Mars has a flat, low-contrast surface, which is difficult to photograph.

● "The side of Mars we are observing is considered to be one of the most difficult for seeing details.

● "The camera has a certain amount of fog in it—reducing the contrast. This will render pictures somewhat more difficult in the processing stage."

Several of the camera's scan lines failed somehow, causing streaks across the frame.

SHOWED SLIDES

Dr. Leighton showed slides of the first Mars picture and said that what appeared in the picture to be a slight haze over the rim of the planet may have been "some kind of fog in the camera."

The picture was taken Wednesday night as Mariner whizzed by Mars in the climax of its photo mission. It was recorded on tape, then sent to earth in an 8½-hour transmission Thursday.

BETTER PICTURES

Experts hope a total of 20 pictures will be received in a 10-day period, with the shots getting progressively better due to closer proximity to the planet and an improving camera angle.

Prescription for Unity

Douglas Pledges 'Fight of Life'

TORONTO (CP) — The New Democratic Party ended a four-day convention Thursday with a new prescription for national unity and a declaration from leader T. C. Douglas that the party will put up the fight of its life in the next election campaign.

The 800 delegates, who came to the national convention buoyed up by recent by-election successes, completed their four days of deliberations with a standing ovation for Mr. Douglas, who was re-elected for another two-year term without a dissenting voice.

And the business ended as it started—on national unity.

A final resolution said Canada faces the gravest crisis in her history. It added:

"In this crisis the New Democratic Party proposes that Canada should adopt a new and dynamic approach to Confederation which will balance a strong federal framework of leadership with an expanded opportunity for provincial and regional development."

QUEBEC SINGLED OUT

And, for the second time in the convention, Quebec was singled out for special treatment. A Canadian constitution must "recognize, clarify and define the special status of Quebec as the guardian of the French language, tradition and culture and guarantee to French-speaking minorities throughout Canada the same constitutional rights as the English-speaking majority."

So Mr. Robertson hired for $20 a piper in full kilts and had him play lunchtime lament in the convention lobby.

"I did it to teach a small lesson to people," Mr. Robertson said. "People should respect the dead."

Johnson Wants Economy Put Into Fighting Trim

From UPI, Reuters

WASHINGTON — President Johnson Thursday ordered administration officials to conduct a major overhaul of the new national budget, getting the U.S. economy in trim for the South Vietnamese War.

Johnson requested department heads and fiscal officials composing a special task force on government cost reduction to cut proposed spending in the budget because of rising costs of the war and new federal programs for education, medical care and housing.

MET TASK FORCE

After the president met with the task force, the White House made public the text of his remarks. The meeting was called to discuss the budget for fiscal 1967, which goes to Congress in January.

Johnson gave these instructions to cabinet officers, agency heads and their budget planners:

● "Hold no program sacred. No program—no matter how long established—should be free of a cold and searching examination. Let me worry about the political problems — I'll make those decisions. Some decisions may be unpopular for a time, but sanity and sense will be far more popular in the long run."

● Real savings are going to come from reducing or eliminating obsolete programs. While I do want you to find more efficient ways of running existing programs, I don't want you to concentrate so heavily on that aspect that you refrain from asking whether the program itself is worthwhile.

KREMLIN TALKS

In Moscow, meanwhile, U.S. ambassador at large W. Averell Harriman met for three hours with Soviet Premier Kossygin at the Kremlin. After the meeting, Harriman said he had sent "significant information" on the discussions to President Johnson.

The session was the first high level meeting between the United States and Russia in Moscow in two years. Harriman refused to provide details on the talks, which were believed to have covered the Viet Nam crisis.

Diplomatic observers believed Harriman had appealed for Kremlin support in bringing about a negotiated settlement of the Viet Nam war.

U.S. Defence Secretary McNamara arrived in Saigon on a mission that could lead to a call-up of U.S. reservists to fight in Viet Nam.

LODGE ALONG

McNamara, accompanied by ambassador-designate Henry Cabot Lodge, has scheduled five days of talks in Saigon and inspection trips in the countryside.

A reserve call-up and a greatly expanded draft call are some of the results expected if McNamara finds the Vietnamese situation as serious as it appears to many observers.

Tight security measures were in force for McNamara and Lodge, who were previous targets of Viet Cong terrorists.

Earth Probe From Mars?

CANBERRA (AP)—A mysterious glowing object—hovering near Canberra airport while the U.S. Mariner space probe was taking pictures of Mars—has baffled experts in Canberra. Air traffic control officers and other expert aircraft observers said they spotted the object Thursday.

Six members of the traffic control tower crew said it hung suspended at about 3,000 feet for 40 minutes. When the sun glided off it, it became clearly visible, they said. It disappeared when an air force plane was sent out to identify it.

'Man Without Country' Is Back

Official Heart Hardened Against Hanna the Hoax

The man without a country who turned out to have one after all, is back in Canada—at Hamilton, Ont. He is Ahmed Aouad, alias Elsayed Ahmed Hassan Elhager, but better known as Christian George Hanna. He had hoped he would be allowed to stay here but immigration officials won't allow him off his ship, even for shore leave.

Hanna is credited with pulling off one of the biggest hoaxes in Canadian immigration history. He was questioned Thursday in Hamilton by immigration officers on board the Egyptian freighter Star of Suez.

While immigration officials in Ottawa are deciding on their next move, Hanna, or Aouad, or Elhager, has been placed in the custody of the ship's master, Capt. M. M. Ghaleb.

Aouad found a haven in Canada for 18½ months until then immigration minister Ellen Fairclough ordered his deportation in October, 1958.

The slight, swarthy and illiterate laborer arrived at Port Alberni in December, 1956, as a stowaway aboard the Norwegian freighter Gudveig.

He told a story of more than a year of lonely exile on the high seas as a stateless person and sought permission to remain in Canada.

He was supported by thousands of Canadians after they heard his story of world wandering. He received free legal help, money, job offers, and three Vancouver women offered to marry him if it would help his cause.

Finally he was allowed to remain in Canada. One newspaper called him "one of the

until Canada took him in." In June, 1957, he checked into the Victoria YMCA, after working on a tug out of Vancouver for three months, but apparently he didn't stay long.

Later he had several brushes with the law in Vancouver. He was convicted of intoxication in a public place

Premier
Resigns

Premier George Papandreu, 71, quit Thursday after 15-minute head-on clash of wills with King Constantine who refused to accept his request for dismissal of Defence Minister Peter Goufalias, close friend of the King's father, King Paul. Young monarch, 25, promptly named parliament president George Athanassiadis Novas to succeed Papandreu.

Hanna-Aouad

Mariner Snaps Red Planet

Mariner's best shots should be 100 times better than those taken through earth telescopes, and should show objects as small as 1 1/2 miles across.

POOREST ANGLE

Picture No. 1, as the shot made from the greatest distance and poorest angle, presumably is poorest of the lot.

The first shot showed no evidence of life or the famed "canals" that some astronomers say they have seen.

QUESTION OF LIFE

The question of life on Mars has long intrigued man, but Mariner's pictures were not expected to detect life if it exists unless the evidence of it is of extreme size—such as canals.

Leighton pointed out smudges apparent in the bright desert area. There was one long, dark smudge some 30 to 50 miles long.

He said it could be either a prominence or a depression.

A long narrow streak across the frame he attributed to failure of a signal in transmission.

"This is certainly not one of the canals," he said, laughing. Leighton said the picture showed the edge of Mars as very sharp, indicating few if any large mountain ranges in that area.

DESERT ELYSIUM

An enlargement of the first frame showed the desert Elysium as a vast area surrounded by small hills and wide, dark smudges. Leighton did not explain what if any significance these details might have.

"As you can tell it is hard to see anything at all in this picture but we are overjoyed to get it," he said.

Earlier, a panel of scientists reported on some of Mariner

4's non-photographic findings. They said that instruments indicated:

WEAK FIELD

It has almost no magnetic field.

Due to so weak a field, it has not trapped a ring of intense radiation from the sun, as earth has.

But background radiation from the sun and outer space is much higher than earth's. The thin atmosphere of Mars doesn't screen radiation as does earth's thick blanket of air.

EXPECTS LIFE

Dr. William H. Pickering, head of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory which built and guided Mariner, said if he was discouraged by Mariner 4's findings, replied at a press conference:

"No. I've always thought that we would find some form of life on Mars and I'm still looking forward to seeing the pictures and to landing vehicles on Mars in the next few years."

Pickering said he expects Mariner to relay about 20 pictures of Mars' surface, a process that will take 10 days.

ANCIENT MYSTERY

Scientists hoped the pictures would provide an answer to the ancient mystery of whether the planet most like earth harbors life.

The pictures are expected to be 100 times better than those from earth telescopes and show objects as small as 1 1/2 miles across.

For a time Wednesday night while the 576-pound spacecraft was within 5,900 miles of the red planet's surface scientists feared its television camera's tape recorder was faulty. But the picture signals came in Thursday just as planned.

STARTED LATE

Pickering said the first of the camera's 22 frames started late, hence photographed all of Mars' surface instead of only part. This, he said, probably means that two or more of the last frames were made on Mars' dark side and would be useless.

Convention Summary

Hispano-linguistic minority enjoy in Quebec.

This resolution, given unanimous approval, was one of many processed by the convention on the topical, touchy issues of federal-provincial relations and bilingualism.

Another late resolution Thursday advocated a "full system of schooling in the French language where a sufficient number of French-speaking Canadians exist to make this possible."

READY TO FIGHT

The NDP party, said Mr. Douglas in his final speech to the convention, now has the platform and purpose that will unite all Canadians in a common goal and, given the money, the party will fight the "toughest, most effective and most aggressive campaign" in its history.

The convention approved a raft of resolutions during its convention and the majority reaffirmed the party's stand on social security, housing, medical care, guaranteed income, and broad social programs.

One resolution was approved that would legalize instruction in birth control.

But throughout the four days, federal - provincial planning and national unity easily dominated the debates—except for Wednesday when the United States was verbally brambled for its actions in Viet Nam.

Johnson Orders Budget Cut

Reliable American military sources say the Reds now field five regiments, each about 2,000 strong, of regular troops in the highlands.

OWE ALLEGIANCE

These are in addition to thousands and thousands of guerrillas and full time provincial troops, who also owe their allegiance to the Viet Cong.

McNamara also will run upon the sheer logic of the mathematical warnings of his own generals.

The generals now believe that at least a superiority of five-to-one is needed to beat the Viet Cong.

$10,000 MEN NEEDED

With Viet Cong strength at 122,000, this means that the allied side should now be fielding 610,000 men.

The allied troops are already about 100,000 men below this strength. If Viet Cong numbers continue to increase at their present rate, the same reasoning would require 400,000 American servicemen in Viet Nam by Christmas.

Two Viet Cong ambushes near Saigon and Da Nang Thursday inflicted heavy losses on Vietnamese forces.

Thirty miles south of Da Nang, where the major U.S. air base in Viet Nam is located, the Viet Cong attacked a strong government force.

50 DEAD

First reports said government losses were heavy, but official U.S. spokesmen later described them as moderate. They said the Viet Cong had lost 50 dead.

In Saigon, Brig.-Gen. Nguyen Huu Co, South Viet Nam's war minister, announced the mobilization of all men and women of military age into a "reserve army," the official Vietnamese press agency said.

The agency quoted Co as saying all women between 30 and 35 years of age and men from 18 to 45 will be inducted into the reserve army "because in this grave situation no citizens can afford to stand outside the anti-Communist ranks."

'Homeless Man' Back

and then of committing an indecent act involving a 25-year-old Vancouver housewife.

Mrs. Fairclough ordered him deported.

He was flown to Lebanon where he was shortly afterwards sentenced to two months in jail for a criminal offence in Beirut.

It was while he was in prison that Egyptian, U.S., Lebanese and Canadian authorities eventually learned he was an Egyptian citizen named Aoud.

At 1:30 a.m. Thursday a reporter for the Hamilton Spectator answered a phone call and picked up Aoud in downtown Hamilton. He subsequently told the reporter he had jumped ship in Vancouver and had made his way to Hamilton.

"The immigration never gave me a chance to stay in Canada," he said. "But maybe it's different now. A new flag, a new government... maybe different."

He added: "Yes, I want to stay in Canada. I never forget Canada; some people here were very kind to me."

He identified newspaper file pictures of himself and admitted when asked about a brief visit to Montreal in 1963 before immigration authorities picked him up and again deported him.

"Jails, jails, jails," he said. "I've been in so many jails. But I'm a free man now."

He spent the rest of the night in a downtown hotel but left shortly before 8 a.m.

Immigration officers later found him on board the Star of Suez which docked in Hamilton Harbor Sunday and is still discharging cargo. He had some papers identifying him as Khaled Ahmed Hassan El-nager.

He denied at first that he was Aoud. Immigration officers, however, pointed to a scar on his forehead, his pierced left ear, and a department file photograph.

The Star of Suez's next port of call is not known.

Under the terms of Aoud's original deportation order, which is still in effect, Aoud cannot step on Canadian soil.

Your Good Health

Never Hand Out Pills Like Candy

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: My sister has given me a month's supply of pills, claiming they are safe to take after menopause. I took about eight of the pills, but have stopped now until I hear from you. Did I do wrong?—A.F.

The pill you named is an excellent preparation containing estrogen (the female hormone) and I think we can be rather sure that you haven't harmed yourself.

Nevertheless, I can't conscientiously tell you to continue taking them without the advice, and follow-up, of your doctor.

Your doctor might very well

tell you to go on taking these same pills, or some like them, but he wouldn't do it on any such flimsy basis as saying that they are "safe for anyone."

The first question is: Do you need them? Is there going to be any benefit to you?

Second: How much should you be taking?

SIDE EFFECTS

Third: Suppose some side effects develop? Would you recognize them, and know what to do about them? Side effects (unwanted additional effects from a medication) are possible from just about every known medication.

Your protection against side effects is what I referred to as "follow-up" by your doctor. He should examine you at intervals to see whether any side effects are threatening, whether the medication should be continued or should be stopped, or to see whether your dosage should be changed.

MEDICATION

Passing around medicine that happens to suit one person is not a safe thing to do, because the medication may be entirely wrong for another person.

This isn't just my advice. It is also the law. The government insists that any medication of such potency must be distributed on prescription. The purpose of prescriptions? To make certain that a doctor is on guard to see that no harm can come from too much use of a drug, too long a continuation of it, or any unusual sensitivity to it.

Dear Dr. Molner: If a person is the family doctor of cancer, what can be done with her beautiful clothes? Should they be dry cleaned, or washed and given to someone, or be burned? I would not want anyone else to get this disease.—S.A.

No, don't burn such clothing. Use it, or give it to someone to use. There is no danger. Cancer is not caused by germs.

Naturally the clothing should be dry cleaned or washed just for the sake of cleanliness, but not because it has anything to do with cancer.

March of Doctors Wins Delay For Quebec Law

QUEBEC CITY (UPI)—Two hundred angry doctors marched on the Quebec legislature Thursday and won almost two weeks' grace for talks aimed at preventing what they think is meddling by the government in their professional affairs.

After Break

Phone Cable Linked

VANCOUVER (CP)—B.C. Telephone Co. said Thursday it had completed repair work on an underwater cable linking Vancouver and Victoria.

The cable, between Point Roberts and Mayne Island, was knocked out of service late Monday when fishing gear snagged a link. Its protective covering was broken.

Loss of the section disrupted about half the 145 circuits available between the two cities. Part of the traffic was rerouted over microwave equipment.

Telephone officials said they expect the cable will be returned to full service today.

Says 'Ma' Murray

Barnacles Collect On Ship of State

VANCOUVER (CP)—Premier Bennett has received another scorching from the acid tongue of upcountry editor Mrs. Margaret (Ma) Murray.

Addressing a service club here Thursday, Ma termed Mr. Bennett's 12 years in office a dictatorship.

"If you keep people in office too long, barnacles get on the ship of state and first thing you know, the bottom is useless," she said.

Her motto for fair government: "Eight years to get into office and eight years to get out."

Turning her criticism to the multi-million-dollar Peace River Power project, he said the would take the power to set hospital regulations out of the hands of the College of Physicians and Surgeons and two provincial hospital associations.

THREE-YEAR SQUABBLE

The government introduced the bill to give the power of the cabinet because the college and the associations have been unable to settle on any formula after three years of squabbling.

It was to come up for debate in the legislative council, Quebec's upper house, Thursday but after last-minute talks with the marching doctors, the government agreed to put it off until the next council meeting, July 27.

MIGHT BE SHELVED

Spokesmen for the doctors said Premier Lesage had said "let us understand" that if an acceptable formula could be hammered out before then, the bill would be shelved.

Dr. Raymond Robitillard of Montreal, president of the Federation of Medical Specialists, told newsmen he was optimistic for a successful conclusion of the negotiations which are continuing in Montreal.

POSSIBLE BARRIER

The only thing that could stand in the way of agreement was "if the hospital administrators refuse to enter into a dialogue" with the college.

Dr. Robitillard and Dr. Gerard Hamel of Montreal, president of the Federation of General Practitioners, said they would offer their services to the two groups as conciliators.

Saves Seven Children

Diets Prevent Brain Damage

SASKATOON (CP)—A special diet developed by a doctor here now is being used to save seven Saskatchewan children in addition to an unknown number throughout the world from mental retardation.

The diet, developed by Dr. John Gerrard, head of the pediatric department at the University of Saskatchewan and two former colleagues in Birmingham, England, now is being provided to children in Saskatchewan through a program instituted by the public health department.

ACID BUILD UP

The diet is designed to counteract a build-up of an amino acid known as phenylalanine, in the blood. Affected children unable to use the acid produced in their bodies eventually suffer mental retardation or deficiency because of damage to the brain. The condition is medically known as phenylketonuria, or PKU.

Dr. Gerrard, in an interview, said the special diet must be started for affected children within the first six months of life, the earlier the better.

It provides a special phenylalanine-free milk for babies which, later, is given with an exceptionally low protein, high carbohydrate, carefully measured diet.

He said while an affected child must have some of the acid which is necessary for growth and development, the amount must be carefully calculated and maintained. This calculation is similar in principle to that used for diabetics, he said, "but a little bit trickier." The diet has to be maintained for about five years during the period of brain growth and, during this period, frequent blood tests are necessary.

New Tunnel Searched For Bombs

Newly opened seven-mile-long tunnel under Mont Blanc from Chamrossy in France to Courmayeur in Italy was being searched Thursday for bombs to guard against assassination attempt when France's President de Gaulle and Italian President Saragat met today to take part in official opening. Tunnel under snow-rapped 15,771-foot Mont Blanc will cut 137 miles off distance between Paris and Rome. It required six-and-one-half years to complete at estimated cost of $65,000,000. Twenty-three workers were killed and more than 200 injured.—(AP)

Grits Send Appeal

ST. JEAN, Que. (UPI)—A group of Liberal Party members Thursday sent a letter to Prime Minister Pearson asking him "not to prejudice" fired federal cabinet minister Yvon Dupuis before his trial on influence-peddling charges is completed.

Officials of the party's organization in Dupuis' home riding of St. Jean-Berville-Napierville said the letter was unanimously approved by 40 members at a meeting Wednesday night. They expected the letter to reach Ottawa today.

The move was a response to Pearson's statement which, in effect, said Dupuis was no longer considered a member of the federal Liberal Party.

Wakey, Wakey!

FOR YEARS ARMY sergeants have never believed that the mere sounding of reveille is sufficient to wake up soldiers to the fact that a new day has dawned. The result is that they or junior non-commissioned officers are daily charged with making the barracks-room rounds shouting at the top of their parade ground voices such endearing blandishments as: "Wakey, Wakey! Rise and shine. Hit the deck, my lucky lads!"

And, understandably, where the bugler has failed the sergeant always succeeds.

A great deal of similarity exists between the Conservative Party of Canada and the sleeping soldiery. Both seem to possess a built-in imperviousness to the sound of normal waking-signals. Reveille, whether sounded on drums, bugles or trumpets, is not enough to rouse them. They both require an added incentive or warning to get them to their feet.

Though the army has long accepted this situation as a basic fact of service life and taken steps, which have now become traditional, to overcome it, it is only recently that leading Tories have come to the same realization.

The result is that Premier Roberts of Ontario and former trade minister George Hees have voluntarily assumed the roles of sergeants in the game of "Wakey, Wakey" in the Conservative Party.

Mr. Roberts began his duty as a waker-upper of dozing Tories late last month with a rousing speech in Winnipeg in which he called for the party to re-establish effective communication between its membership and its leaders and to develop a policy so that "we can meet the challenge of the preservation and strengthening of confederation" and to "affirm our faith in ourselves as a nation, in national independence, in national unity and in national development."

Mr. Hees took over his stint Tuesday in Montreal when he attempted to spark some life into the recumbent body by advocating the creation of a new policy-producing mechanism within the Conservative Party. The new mechanism, he said, would channel ideas from the best brains both inside and out of the party into a continuing flow of policy recommendations to the Conservative caucus and leadership.

Armed with such policies, Mr. Hees said he is convinced that the party can oust the Liberal government "which has shocked Canadians by the conduct of its members" and return to power.

Canadians generally—the majority of whom must be disturbed, if not downright disgusted, with the present Ottawa government—will welcome the efforts of both these men in their attempt to force upon the Conservative Party some sort of recognition of its responsibilities to the nation at this time.

It is to be hoped that they succeed—for reveille has long since been sounded.

Gallant in Defeat

A MAN WHO had served his country for the better part of his life, and died in its service, Adlai Ewing Stevenson is mourned far beyond the frontiers of his nation.

He will be remembered not only as a distinguished diplomat, as a successful politician, a zealous defender of his country's policies, and a dedicated worker for the peace of the world, but as a man gallant and gracious in defeat. Twice he was the Democratic presidential nominee, in 1952 and 1956, and twice he was defeated by Dwight Eisenhower.

On that second occasion, hurt and humiliated though he was, he showed his quality when he sent this message to the president:

"Tonight we are not Republicans and Democrats, but Americans. We appreciate the grave difficulties your administration faces and as Americans join in wishing you all success in the years that lie ahead."

The fact is, he was a reluctant candidate for the presidency.

On his first nomination he said:

"I have asked the merciful Father of us all to let this cup pass from me. But from such dread responsibility one does not shrink in fear, in self-interest or false humility. So, if this cup may not pass away from me except I drink it, Thy will be done."

Mr. Stevenson was an adviser to the United States delegation at the organization of the United Nations in 1945, and his interest in its affairs continued until his untimely death. President Kennedy, who had won the Democratic nomination in spite of strong popular demand for Mr. Stevenson to stand a third time, appointed him ambassador to the United Nations.

It was a post for which he was uniquely fitted by background of education and wide travel, and by his identification with the ideals of liberty and justice. He filled it with distinction, with eloquence and with courage—and in the darkest hours of his nation's involvement he won for his people a sympathy and understanding which would have been beyond the powers of a lesser man. In his gentleness and moderation he achieved astonishing strength and his powers of persuasion made him outstanding in diplomacy.

Captured Killer

THE BANTER ABOUT whether Namu, the killer whale, is subject to the United States Immigration and Naturalization Act is no doubt very amusing to some people.

Namu, who was captured when he became entangled in the nets of two Canadian fishermen, is being towed to Seattle in a floating pen. He has been bought for $8,000 and his fate is to awe the public who will gaze upon him in the splendid isolation of an aquarium.

While he is being towed south his family follows, swimming alongside the pen and "beeping" back and forth with him.

There is something in human nature, something not entirely admirable, which relishes the sight of captive beasts, the bigger and more ferocious the better. Perhaps it is something to do with man's obvious physical inferiority in the scheme of things, and his unrecognized wish to see his mental superiority proved. Look at this great creature! he says to himself. Who's afraid? And he swaggers up and throws a stone or a lighted cigarette butt into the bear's cage.

Whatever the symptoms may mean to the psychologist, the spectacle is an affront to those of us who would allow the wild creatures of the sea or the forest or the mountains to go their ways in peace. Except for essential food or for the advancement of science the killing and capture and imprisonment of wild creatures seems somehow inhuman—if inhuman is the word.

Regrettably it is very human indeed, not only to capture and cage but even to taunt, and to preen a little at man's cleverness.

Youth in Search of Security

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Bureau

HOW square can you get, huh?" cackled the Montreal teen-age collegian in the stretch dignified, the short, sharp lace-edged jacket, the choke collar and the untidy grubby Beanie mop.

"Yeah, looky, huh?" agreed his high school girl-friend in the stretch dignified, the short, sharp lace-edged jacket, the choke collar and the untidy grubby Beanie mop.

They were talking about Prime Minister Pearson who had snatched a precious few minutes from his already punishingly overcrowded working day to speak to the touring student group, herded by their hot and harassed teachers into the railway committee room of Parliament Hill's Centre Block.

What does a prime minister say to such kids?

The speech is short, informal, more of a friendly chat.

He tells them of the ever-increasing job pressure for better qualified minds, warns them that more and more with each passing day there is going to be less and less for the indifferently educated.

Excellence has become the passing grade, he warned them, and the make-do, scrape-through education won't rate 375 a week in the world where a university degree is fast becoming standard job equipment.

And some of them—not all by any means, but still a surprising number—either don't care or don't believe it and call him "square."

A minority, perhaps, think this way?

Not such a minority, really, that veteran of 33 good and useful parliamentary years, Senator Tom Reid has warned after taking the trouble to sample some student opinion.

There was the time, not so long ago when, after hearing the prime minister tell a group of students that if they kept their noses to their textbooks and their eyes on the stars, they, too, could make it to the top, he asked them what about it?

Could they, with the work, ability and yes, the breaks, too, in this soft and easy age get to be prime minister?

Or, more tellingly, would they want to?

How'd you like to be PM? the senator asked the collegian. You kidding? came the flip reply. Sell you my chances for a nickel!

And so the senator has been shocked to find so few want to be scientists, ambassadors, air marshals or admirals, cabinet ministers or even MPs—and so many would much prefer to be "paper-pushers," clerks in snug, unrewarding and dead-end jobs in government or big "secure" corporations, or mechanics or truck drivers in any organization large enough to provide a pension.

Reason there's still room at the top is that so few want to get there.

Everybody prefers to be in the rank and file—and hardly anybody wants to take the risk and responsibility of leadership.

If you can't stand the heat, the prime minister has said, then stay out of the kitchen.

And that, fears Senator Reid, is what any number of the students who listen to the PM intend doing.

For this said state of student affairs, the senator has blamed what he terms "the Safety Syndrome."

Responsible, says he, has been the "Big Daddy" image of government, the longing and looking to Ottawa for the ultimate security.

Parents advise their children to get the safe job with the sure pension.

Schools reflect the image of a firmly secure society, permanently in safe and orderly hands, with a built-in guarantee of the overflowing supermarket basket at the end of the 30-hour week, continuous if innocuous television diversion and protection provided by the still dedicated and ambitious few against incursions by an envious and ever more dangerous outside world.

What is happening, shrugs the senator, is that hordes of "premature pensioners" are coming off the educational assembly line of mediocrity at 17 and 18.

He summed it all up with a revision of that cynical old-world 19th century English prayer:

God bless the squire and his relations
And keep us in our proper stations.

This is now up-dated by the senator to read:

God bless Big Daddy and the nation
Which indicates our proper station.

In the classrooms of his day—and he learned his lessons in the bygone age of the little red schoolhouse—he remembers, still with emotion, how "then" they held out to us the inspiration of empire, pride of race and the glory of our great heroes."

But it's different now, Nelson, Drake, Wellington, Champlain, Churchill, and closer to home, Prime Minister Pearson are squares. To think of them otherwise is to think looky.

Between Arabs and Blacks

Sudanese Conflict

By DON SHANNON from Khartoum

AFRICA'S bloodiest racial conflict at the moment is not between white Europeans and black men but between the nine million Arabs of this sprawling nation and the three million black minority, with a struggle between Islam and Christianity sharpening the conflict.

Racial battle has ended in African victory in most of the continent except white-ruled South Africa, Rhodesia and the Portuguese colonies, where a black nationalism has been at least temporarily crushed.

The Sudanese civil war has gone on almost without halt since the Anglo-Egyptian colonial regime withdrew in January, 1956, and nearly 10 years after independence, government troops control only the capital towns of the three southern provinces while black rebel Anya-Nya bands rule the countryside.

At the moment when the whole Sudan was threatened by a Communist takeover after the revolution against the military dictatorship of Gen. Ibrahim Abboud last year, the racial conflict erupted in the capital itself. More than 400 persons were killed in Khartoum riots Dec. 6, and there is no accurate count of the victims of continual fighting in the southern provinces, estimated at tens of thousands.

Beyond the human and economic losses suffered internally, the race war has cost the Sudan the good will of her neighbors. To their sympathy for the oppressed black minority was added the irritation of the recent Sudanese policy of giving refuge to dissident refugees from Ethiopia, The Congo and Chad, bringing threats of retaliation from the three nations.

What turned out to be the Khartoum regime's worst blunder was allowing arms from Egypt and Algeria to be shipped through the Sudan to the Congo rebels. Many of the weapons were seized by Anya-Nyas before they reached the border, and much of the real fell into their hands when defeated Congo rebels fled across the Sudan border and sold or gave away their arms to southern tribesmen. The result is that the Anya-Nyas, who originally fought northern soldiers with bows and arrows, now are better equipped than the government troops.

The interim government, freed of Communist influence, last March started cutting off arms supplies and sought peace in the south through a round table conference which opened in Khartoum last week.

The 36-year-old SANA chairman, who was an assistant district commissioner in the extreme south province of Equatoria until he rebelled against central government policies and went into exile in February, 1961, said the first two years of independence and the subsequent Abboud dictatorship were worse than the colonial regime in some respects. One of the measures most resented by southerners was Abboud's banning of foreign and native Christian missionaries from the south, he said.

"Now African missionaries have been permitted to return, but not foreign missionaries," Deng said. "The majority of us are Catholics, and our view is that the church is universal and we hope all restrictions will be removed by the new constitution."

Drafting of the Sudan's new constitution awaits election of 60 southerners to a constituent assembly, scheduled to take place early next year. Deng is not overly optimistic that the outcome will be happy.

Beshir Mohammed Said, publisher of Khartoum's leading Arabic newspaper, Al Ayam, along with the English-language Morning News, is doubtful that the Arab majority ever will agree to support the south as a federal partner. He also disagreed with Deng over the treatment of the south since independence.

"When the Sudan became independent, there wasn't a single southern university graduate," he said. "This year, Khartoum University accepted 100 southern students."

Beshir Mohammed Said acknowledged the justice of many southern complaints, but he denied that the north alone must accept the blame.

The Common Market's Crisis

Ex-Oil Enemies Unite to Foil Grab by Nasser

By HAROLD MORRISON, from London
By JOE ALEX MORRIS, from BEIRUT

An unlikely combination of powers has joined forces to keep revolutionary Arab nationalism away from the oil resources of the Persian Gulf.

Britain, Saudi Arabia and Iran have in the past laid conflicting claims to the area. For the moment, they have dropped their disputes and joined to keep this sweltering and long-neglected backwater out of Cairo's clutches.

It was the threat posed by Egyptian ambitions in the area—carefully cloaked in the form of an Arab league aid program—which led to an historic meeting that has just ended in Dubai, a thriving commercial centre and one of the crucial states.

For the first time ever, the rulers of the seven crucial states, plus Qatar and Bahrain, met there to map out a collective course between Arab nationalism and British paternalism.

They made a start toward economic co-ordination by adopting a common currency. But significance of the meeting went far beyond that.

The gulf — Persian to the Persians, Arab to the Arabs and still predominantly British, in fact — is the latest battleground between conflicting forces of Egyptian nationalism and the West. Its importance is its oil which stretches from the fabulously productive fields of Kuwait in the north down to the southern rim of the Arabian peninsula.

For Britain, security of the gulf is all important. The wheels of British industry turn on gulf oil. The stability of sterling rests in great measure on these resources.

The British would like to keep it that way. They have treaty relations with all the petty principalities bordering the gulf.

Through the shepherd's clothing of the Arab League, the Egyptians for some months now have been trying to penetrate the gulf and alter its made-in-Britain image. They wisely directed their pitch at five "have-not" crucial states.

Sharjah is the largest of these with perhaps 15,000 inhabitants. All five signed up for a projected Arab League development plan under which they were promised $21,000,000 over the next five years.

The British took umbrage at this. They said all five violated the terms of a British-sponsored development scheme set up eight years ago.

The two richer crucial states never showed any interest in Cairo's plan.

The Dubai meeting was a step toward knitting these fractious petty principalities together in some sort of economic and eventually political federation which also would embrace Qatar and Bahrain.

Bahrein ridden with rivalry and suspicion built up and nurtured through the ages, there are signs that the greater danger to the Arab-British establishment emanating from Cairo finally is taking root—at least among the "haves."

Kuwait, for example, quietly has been aiding the principalities for some years now, concentrating on individual development projects. Recently even the miserly Sheikh Shaktut of Abu Dhabi has contributed $70,000 to the development fund.

Most interesting, however, is the quiet backing the British have received from Saudi Arabia which has a longstanding claim to the crucial states. But the Saudis today see Nasserite influence as a greater danger than British protectionism.

The Saudis have withdrawn from the Arab League plan and instead have loaned $5,600,000 to Dubai. Reportedly they are ready to contribute another $2,800,000 to the British-sponsored development plan through Dubai. Their long-standing quarrel with Britain over the Buraimi oasis quietly has been shelved.

Iran has not become directly involved because the flood of Persian laborers into the gulf area is a source of continual alarm to Arab rulers of every stripe. But the Shah of Iran has pledged support to Saudi Arabia's King Faisal in the event of an Egyptian attack—even to the extent of committing the air force to helping defend Saudi Arabia from Egyptian air attack.

For the time being, the bottom has fallen out of the Arab League plan. In any case, the money for Cairo's plan never was pledged, and the withdrawal of Saudi Arabia plus a new reluctance on the part of Kuwait practically ensures it never will be.

Paraguay Sends Extra Troops

ASUNCION (AP) — Paraguay sent 130 additional troops to the Dominican Republic Thursday to join the peace force of the Organization of American States. The group, which included 27 communications specialists, brings to 210 Paraguay's representation on the force.

BACKGROUND

U.S. Thinking Baffles Allies Europe Policy Not for Asia

Among Adlai Stevenson's last words was a line of thought which goes to the root of the United States' trouble in attempting to maintain a foreign policy which the allies sometimes find so difficult to understand and support.

It is the American attempt to equate defence of Asia with defence of Europe and to conclude that if U.S. determination in Europe, the same should be true of the situation on the other side of the world.

In a radio broadcast, recorded before he collapsed and died on a London street, Stevenson recalled that in the critical 1947-52 period, the U.S. "drew a line" in Western Europe, and "It has been respected by the Russians on the one side, by the West on the other."

What the late ambassador to the United Nations was saying in effect is that once the Russians became fully educated to the idea that the U.S. and its allies would not budge from a certain line in Europe, then the attempt at aggression withered.

The post-war commotion in Berlin is perhaps a good example of a policy that paid off. But Asia is not Europe and the major antagonist there seems to be not Russia but China. In Europe the U.S. had sophisticated allies, sometimes squabbling among themselves but nevertheless joined by a common heritage. In Asia the supply links are a long way from home; the terrain is unfamiliar, the supposed friend a virtual stranger in cultures, language and wealth.

To draw a line in Asia and tell the 700,000,000 Chinese they cannot step across it presents a tremendous challenge in American will power, wealth and military manpower. It also provides the adversary in Asia with the enticing prospect that he can pick the battlefield best suited to him.

Both President Johnson and his predecessor, the late President Kennedy, have maintained that if the American promise of freedom is to be kept, the U.S. must be ready to meet the enemy anywhere. As Stevenson stated in his last broadcast, "my hope in Viet Nam is that resistance there may establish the fact that changes in Asia are not to be precipitated by outside force."

But where in Asia is the line to be drawn? When the Chinese fell on Tibet, the West lamented the aggression but did nothing. Instead, the line seems to have been drawn in areas where Western interests are more apparent—in Malaysia, South Viet Nam and Thailand. And even in this area the question arises whether the area wants Western support and influence. If the line is to include South Viet Nam and Thailand, what about Cambodia which has spurned and condemned American influence?

The fact that Western Europe had a long history of a central form of culture and society that

Johnson Hard to Please

Image Makers

By RICHARD WILSON, from Washington

This has been a hard season for the custodians of the Johnson image. Something more than the reasons given is responsible for the unrelated departures from the Johnson intimate circle of Carl Rowan, head of the United States Information Agency, and George Reedy, the president's press secretary.

Rowan quit his $30,000 per year job as the chief image-maker on the international scene for the stated reason that he had such a favorable offer to write a newspaper column that he could not turn it down. Reedy asked to be relieved to undergo long-needed medical and surgical treatment.

These are plausible reasons but they fail to reflect the fact that Reedy and Rowan had assignments which, under existing conditions, are virtually impossible to execute in a satisfactory manner. Both jobs call for unusually intimate relationships with the president. Both Rowan and Reedy asked to be relieved at a time when the Johnson image is suffering domestically and internationally.

How much either Reedy or Rowan could have done to change or improve the Johnson image is debatable. Their problem was a demanding and hard-to-please boss who often took his press relations into his own hands and who gave the appearance of being more sensitive to what was said and written about him than any president in this century.

The relief of Rowan and Reedy reflects the noticeable restlessness of personnel in the Johnson administration. Rumors that Secretary of State Dean Rusk is ready to get out are taken seriously. President Johnson has been talking about a new staff setup which would bring Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara into the White House with government-wide responsibilities.

As time goes on President Johnson tends to reduce the number of persons who are brought in on key decisions, particularly in international and national security affairs. At present he meets regularly in a group of four, Secretary McNamara, Secretary Rusk, McGeorge Bundy, and himself. This concentration of authority leads to criticism that the Cabinet and the National Security Council are in the position of merely ratifying prior decisions by the central power group.

Officials of the rank of Rowan come into the picture at a lower level, and the press secretary may not be in the equation at all until he is called upon to make announcements of which he has only limited knowledge.

Thus the image makers may be considerably removed from the centres of real power, and when they come to realize this they discover how hard it is to mold the day in the desired form.

Major Scientific Achievement

'Life' Synthesized

By ROBERT TOTH
From Washington

The five chemical building blocks of life's reproductive molecules have been synthesized for the first time from the simple ingredients and under the conditions that theoretically existed on primeval earth.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced the achievement. It provides the best proof so far that life is the product of spontaneous chemical evolution on the planet.

Dr. Cyril Ponnamperuma of NASA's exobiology division, synthesized the five so-called nucleotides with the help of a research assistant, Ruth Mack.

Scientists have been working on this problem for at least a decade.

They start with the basic chemicals of water, ammonia and methane that probably comprised the earth's atmosphere billions of years ago. Into it they pump energy in the form of heat (analogous to volcanic activity on early earth) and electric sparks (comparable to lightning).

Some who have made amino acids which join together to form protein molecules, but that synthesis required excessively high temperatures (over 1,600 degrees Fahrenheit) which probably did not exist on primitive earth.

Other scientists made the same nucleotides now put together by the NASA researchers, but they used long and complex laboratory procedures, according to the space agency.

Dr. Ponnamperuma did it simply by applying heat at temperatures of 180 degrees Fahrenheit, which is below the boiling point of water, and electric sparks.

The nucleotides that emerged from the hot soup are the essential stuff of the hereditary molecules of life, DNA (deoxyribonucleic acid) and RNA (ribonucleic acid).

These DNA and RNA molecules direct life's reproduction processes. They contain the blueprints of organisms as well as the templates by which material (such as protein) is organized into living cells.

The nucleotides, in living things, join together in repeating units of hundreds of thousands to make the long chains of DNA and RNA. The NASA scientists have not yet accomplished this final step.

Dr. Ponnamperuma achieved the synthesis of the nucleotides in three steps. He applied heat to the primordial soup of methane, ammonia and water and got the five nitrogenous bases.

To the mixture of bases he added the two sugars (ribose for RNA manufacture, deoxyribose for DNA) which previously had been made by applying energy from an electric spark to a mixture of their constituent parts.

The result was that the bases linked up with the sugars to form bigger molecules.

Finally, he added phosphate which is believed to have been present in earth's ancient seas and on its land surfaces.

Heating the brew yielded quantities of the five nucleotides, each composed of four of the bases, a sugar and one phosphate atom. It is these nucleotides that presumably formed the long spiral chains of DNA and RNA over hundreds

Boats Save 27 After Collision

EASTBOURNE, England (AP)

—Rescue boats brought ashore 27 survivors of the Greek cargo vessel Nymfa after it figured in a foggy collision with the tanker Francesca, 10 miles off Beachy Head. The 7,300-ton Nymfa was badly damaged and deep in the water, but the captain and six crew stayed aboard while a tug took her in tow for Southampton.

Flood Leaves Wake of Dead

MANILA (Reuters)—Floods in the southern Philippine province of Cotabato have left 33 dead and some 500 families homeless, according to reports reaching here Wednesday.

Try this sociable new combination of flavour.

Why Gilbey's London Dry weds perfectly with Bitter Lemon.

The answer is remarkably simple.

Some gins have rather strong flavouring. Others are utterly tasteless. But Gilbey's London Dry has a perfect balance of flavour for mixed gin drinks.

In fact, Gilbey's dry flavour has been an international favourite since 1873. Quite a long time.

Gilbey's London Dry marries joyfully with the sharp new taste and lively bubbles of bitter lemon.

Prove it to yourself. Tonight.

Two Bits Worth To Be Left Out

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate sent to President Johnson Thursday a bill to eliminate all silver from U.S. dimes and quarters and cut the silver content in half dollars to 40 per cent from 90. The House of Representatives passed the measure Wednesday. Johnson asked for the measure because of a rapidly developing shortage of silver in the face of heavy demands for coins for use in vending machines.

Paper Gagged

KHARTOUM (Reuters) — A high court judge here Thursday ordered the immediate suspension of the English language daily newspaper Vigilant which was alleged to have exaggerated reports of recent unrest in southern Sudan.

Police said he had a breathalyzer reading of only .12, but was extremely unsteady on his feet after an accident on Blenkinsop Road about midnight, July 4. He lost control of his car and hit a fence near 4180 Blenkinsop.

Ellen Jamieson, 5019 Cordova Bay, was remanded to July 22 for pre-sentence report after she pleaded guilty to failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Her car was in collision with two cyclists at 4.25 p.m. July 2 near the intersection of Cedar Hill and Cedar Hill Cross Road. Two boys, aged six and seven, received bruises and abrasions in the mishap, and one boy had a cut to the head which required seven stitches.

Witnesses said the woman stopped, but then proceeded without rendering assistance.

He and another youth were in a car at 3:45 p.m., July 4 on Shelbourne Street with four cases of beer.

Robert J. Mercer, 850 Admirals, was fined $80 after he pleaded guilty to careless driving.

He lost control of his car about 5:30 p.m. June 30 on Tattersall, hitting a pole and knocking out 20 feet of fence.

His licence was suspended.

Victoria Kirkham, 1090 Lodge, was fined $45 on a similar charge as a result of an accident on the Mayfair Lanes parking lot July 3.

In city court, Audrey Karjala of Nanaimo was fined $35 for careless driving. She was involved in a collision at Cook and Richardson June 21.

Bad Drivers 'Voters' To Sores

VANCOUVER (CP) — An insurance company executive said Wednesday the provincial government refuses to lift the licences of dangerous drivers because it is afraid of losing votes.

J. C. Scott, assistant manager of Yorkshire Insurance Corporation here told the Vancouver traffic and safety council that many drivers are genuine hazards to public safety because of the government policy.

"The provincial government should realize its responsibility to public safety by suspending licences, even if it will cost votes," said Mr. Scott.

Efforts for Ambulances Cold-Shouldered

Two mainland MLAs said Thursday their last-ditch efforts to gain provincial support for failing ambulance services in their Coquitlam and New Westminster constituencies were cold-shouldered by the government.

NDP members David Barrett (Dewdney) and Rae Eddle (New Westminster) said they had intended to catch cabinet ministers leaving Thursday morning's regular cabinet meeting — but arrived too late.

"We talked to Attorney-General Bonner, but he just said it is a municipal responsibility," Mr. Barrett said. "We'll just have to keep bugging them. If we don't get some action the people of our areas will have no ambulance service beginning at midnight," he added.

They said they had planned to appeal to the cabinet to give at least a temporary grant toward maintenance of a municipally-subsidized ambulance service.

They also said they are demanding the resignation of Health Minister Eric Martin over the issue.

Subsidies in the Greater Vancouver area have climbed rapidly over the years to $150,000 a year and the local councils had all been agitating for provincial government aid.

The NDP members' proposal was for an "immediate $400,000 grant to provide a province-wide subsidized ambulance service."

Mr. Barrett said he is aware of no legislation planned by the government to cover the situation.

Newest Gold Takes Drop At Vancouver

VANCOUVER—Staircase Exploration, Ontario's new gold mine, provided the main weakness to the mining list with a drop to 1.80 down 40 cents. Other mines were dull and mainly unchanged.

In senior basic metals Pine Point rose 1/2 to 50 1/2 and Inco 1/4 to 80 1/4.

Dome led golds higher, gaining 1/2 to 40 1/2. Kerr Addison climbed 15 cents to $8.00. In senior western oils, Cent. Oil climbed 1/4 to 1 1/4 and Home A 1/4 to 1 1/4, but Pacific Petroleum lost 1/4 to 10.

Motors Go Flat

NEW YORK (AP)—The latest stock market rally continued briefly but then faltered and the list finished with a jumbled pattern.

The early momentum was trading was a fairly active but then in the overall list enough to leave more gains early in the session but dwindled as the price pattern reversed itself.

The background to the list was somewhat mixed. President Johnson's Council of Economic Advisors gave him an optimistic report on the state of the economy. Industrial output in June was reported at another record and employment increased further.

On the other hand, inventories of new cars were reported at record levels but the auto industry was reported undisturbed.

Stocks of all big three autos declined, General Motors losing 1/4, Ford 1/4 and Chrysler 1/4.

Swings of 12 Points Common

Bank Shares a Buy

By HARRY YOUNG

Business Editor

When do Canadian bank shares become "buy"? The theory held by many investment advisers is that they can be acquired safely when they are at a price that gives them a yield of 3.75 per cent.

Conversely, the experts say that when bank stocks rise to the point when they give a yield of 3.25 per cent or less, they should be sold, as they are too high.

THEORY WORKS

The interesting thing about this theory is that in practice it actually works very well indeed. Despite the staid nature of the business, banking shares are quite volatile movers and in many years have had a swing from top to bottom of 12 and more points in a single year.

These swings have usually topped out about the 3.25 per cent yield level and have bottomed at 3.75 per cent.

VERY CLOSE

The point is raised at the moment because of the fact that present market values put the bank shares very close to the position at which they traditionally should be starting to climb. In a dull market such as this being experienced at present this might not happen immediately, but it should be borne in mind that in the recent industrial boom, bank shares did not rise with the general market.

NEW BANKS

The talk of new banks, doubts about the new Bank Act, and some of Finance Minister Walter Gordon's proposals, completely unacceptable to the banks, have made them a drag on the market.

However, recent difficulties which have been experienced by other financial institutions have improved their prestige, and it may be that the upward swing is not so far away.

Based on recent market quotations here is the charted bank picture in terms of dividends.

Bank	Dividend	Yield
Bank of Montreal	1.00	3.25%
Bank of Toronto	0.80	3.25%
Bank of Nova Scotia	0.70	3.25%
Bank of New Brunswick	0.60	3.25%
Bank of New South Wales	0.50	3.25%

Net profit of Sheep Creek Mines Ltd. for the year ended May 31 was lower at $180,339 (9.5 cents) from the $233,530 (11.9 cents) of the previous fiscal year. The company however reports that during the year Sheep Creek's portfolio of marketable securities had appreciated by $340,000, or 12.6 cents a share.

Appointed a Director of Imperial Oil Limited

Assays from the first drilling hole of Sileurian Oilfield on its molybdenum property on Alice Arm were described by Walter Eiler, president, as "very encouraging."

The company reported Thursday that the first hole of 85 feet encountered molybdenum ore at 33 feet and was in ore for 41 feet. Five samples assayed an average of 0.2 per cent molybdenum—65, 76, 28, 44 and 51.

ONE RICHER

This was about three times richer ore than that being mined by Endako, said Mr. Eiler.

"We are not yet in the high-grade ore which is further up the hill," he added.

The president said the company's large drill was being moved from the silver property on the other side of Alice Arm and that both drills would be at work on the 40 claims for about three months, so that "a proper evaluation may be made."

Multi-Million Plane Deal Will Provide 2,100 Jobs

Twin jet CF-5 joins RCAF

OTTAWA (CP)—The government has approved purchase of the U.S. Northrop F-5 fighter-bomber for the Canadian Air Force, the defence department announced Thursday.

It will be built to Canadian specifications and called the CF-5.

A statement by Defence Minister Hellyer said the multi-purpose aircraft will be used primarily in tactical support of ground forces, "and as such will be a new plane for a new role."

Mr. Hellyer later told a press conference that Canadair Ltd., Montreal, will build the airframes and the Orenda division of Hawker-Siddeley the engines.

Canadair will get about $80,000,000 of the total $215,000,000 program and Orenda $35,000,000.

Some $75,000,000 will be subcontracted to United States firms but, Mr. Hellyer said, Canada will get at least this much back through U.S. firms placing defence contracts in Canada.

Mr. Drury said the program will provide about 2,100 jobs during the four-year production program.

The first plane will come off the assembly line in about two years, the last in early 1970.

Four Juvenile Raiders Dropped by Buckshot

PENTICTON (CP) — Four juveniles best on stealing from a backyard vegetable patch were shot in the buttocks by the owner, police disclosed.

The juveniles were treated in a hospital and later released.

RCMP said that on the advice of city solicitor F. H. Herbert no charges would be laid.

Frank Cascel, 74, told police that when he discovered the juveniles in his garden Tuesday night he ordered them to leave. They refused to do so.

Cascel said he fired a warning shot in the air with his shotgun because he couldn't chase them. He has a wooden leg.

He said he fired a second shot. The spray of shotgun pellets struck all four juveniles, police said.

It was the second recent incident in B.C. involving youths being shot.

Two weeks ago a White Rock trailer camp operator who had been beaten by a gang of youths the previous night shot two youths in the leg when a gang of 30 advanced on him.

Federal, State Tax Collectors Waiting for Namu's Owner

SEATTLE (AP)—Taxmen Ted Griffin has 8,000 pounds worth languidly swimming his way.

If that sounds like a whale of a problem, it is.

Namu, the four-ton killer whale being towed here from the British Columbia fishing port of the same name, may get out of Canada with a benevolent official blessing, but not so in this land of the free before taxes.

He'll find state and federal tax collectors manning the ramparts with hands outstretched—as soon as they can find out how much they're reaching for.

Griffin, who bought the 22-foot leviathan for his Seattle marine aquarium, thought he had figured out a way to avoid the state's 4.2 per cent use tax.

"I didn't pay $8,000 for the whale," he said Wednesday. "I paid that for the gilts in which those two B.C. fishermen caught him three weeks ago."

"They just threw in the whale for free."

Nice try, said James Stanford, state tax commission secretary, but no cigar.

Namu Sulking Whale, Convoy Wait Out Storm

KEELSEY BAY (AP) — Namu the killer whale, who has blown up a storm of publicity since his capture, ran into a real one Thursday which sent his Seattle-bound convoy scudding to cover.

Winds up to 25 miles an hour whirled up a chop in Johnstone Strait and threatened the four-ton killer whale's rickety 40-by-60 foot pen.

IN SMALL COVE
A small Vancouver Island cove nine miles north of here provided haven for the seagull, coral and two tugs until the rough weather abated.

The forecast was for little improvement through today.

But of more concern is Namu's appetite gone.

He's lost his appetite and a rift seems to have developed between him and his family.

The crew towing the 22-foot whale to his intended destination as the prize attraction of the Seattle marine aquarium bought more than 300 pounds of fresh salmon to tickle his palate. His usual menu is 200 pounds daily.

Namu disdained the delicacies. Whether this had any connection with his family problems is speculative. But the togetherness of the past few days ended Wednesday when Mrs. Namu and her two calves moved several thousand yards away from Namu's pen and stayed there.

How far can you stretch $54? All the way to Britain!

This Fall, fly from Vancouver to London. Costs only $54 down! That's 10% of your $539 round-trip air fare and you can take as long as 24 months to pay the balance. Just one BOAC transatlantic 21-Day Economy Excursion bargain. Here are others that make your money go even further.

Buy a Volvo Canadian, keep it a long time, and get out from under car payments for a change.

What's a long time? Eleven years is a long time. That's how long Volvos are driven in Sweden, where there are no speed limits on the highways and there are 70,000 miles of unpaved roads.

How long will a Volvo last in Canada? We don't know yet. Volvos have only been here nine years. But if you had a Volvo compact and kept it half that eleven years you could spend your money on something besides car payments. And you'd save money on gas, too. Volvos get 30 miles to the gallon even with automatic transmission. Come in any time and test drive one.

NELSON, B.C. (C.P.)—A 15-year-old Spokane, Wash., youth was credited Thursday with saving the life of a Vancouver boy, injured on a climbing expedition up a 9,100-foot mountain near here.

Rescuers credited quick action by Joseph Sapp for preventing 13-year-old Richard Therrian from tumbling down the face of Emerald Peak after the Vancouver boy hit his head on a rock ledge.

Crash Widow Awarded $1,225,000

CHICAGO (AP) — Mrs. Truse Hollerich, 42, the widow of a contractor killed in a 1963 plane crash will receive $1,225,000 under a settlement agreed upon Wednesday. The amount is believed to be the largest ever paid for a single death in the United States.

MOBILE COMMAND

The defence department earmarked $215,000,000 for 125 tactical aircraft in its five-year re-equipment program outlined in the latest defence white paper. This sum covers necessary spares and support equipment.

TWO JETS

In its Canadian version, the Northrop plane will be powered by two jet engines, each with a thrust of 4,300 pounds. They will be capable of speeds up to 1,000 miles per hour.

CONVENTIONAL ARMS

The CF-5's ability, weapons mix, speed, ease of maintenance and versatile conventional (non-nuclear) capability made this aircraft the logical selection for the new global-mobile role of the Canadian forces," the announcement said.

U.S. Agriculture In Good Shape

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman says United States agriculture is in relatively good shape with income this year estimated at $13,500,000,000. That is a jump of $800,000,000 over last year and about $500,000,000 more than Freeman's department had predicted earlier.

GIANTS DIE OUT

The blue whale, the largest creature ever to have lived, is expected to die out before 1970 unless it is protected.

The state use tax, at the same rate as the state sales tax, is on items purchased outside the state for use inside.

Roy Peterson, collector of customs here, said that since the tariff act does not specifically exempt whales Griffin will have to pay customs duty on Namu.

Rocks Support Life

By M. V. CHESNUT

Next time you go fishing in Saanich Inlet, take a good look at the rocky shore between Brentwood and the Goldstream end. After all that careful preparation of the soil in our gardens, it is somewhat disconcerting to see so many trees and plants springing up in those weatherbeaten rocks, growing in cracks with not much more than a cupful of washed-in soil to support them.

Actually, there are quite a few plants which will not only eke out an existence in a crack in the rocks but will actually flourish in an old rock wall with little or no soil around the roots.

Wallflowers, of course, come to mind--that's how they got their name--and under suitable conditions, snapdragons will seal themselves in the crevices of a wall and seem perfectly at home there. Certain carnations and pinkies are found in nature growing in chinks of chalky cliffs--the Cheddar pinkies are a good example, growing in inaccessible spots of the Cheddar Gorge in England. The pickings must be pretty slim in such a spot, and one would be inclined to think that such plants have learned to live on air.

Air does play a very important part in the nutrition of plants, as it is the source of the carbon which all plants must have in order to grow, but that isn't all. Both rain and moist air contain small quantities of plant-nourishing minerals, particularly during and following flashes of lightning in thunderstorms.

The mortar in an old wall and the limestone in the rocks contain lime, providing calcium for the plant's growth, while the acid excretions from the plant's roots can dissolve and make available other minerals contained in the stone. And so the essentials of plant life are gathered--even from apparently bare rock.

Another interesting aspect of plant nutrition is the way plants deal with their food as compared with the same process in humans and other animals. We obtain our food requirements by eating highly complex compounds, all obtained directly or indirectly from the leaves of plants, and break them down within our digestive system into simple essential elements, excreting the useless residue.

Plants reverse this process. They take in only simple mineral salts through their root hairs, pump them up into the leaves and there, through a marvellous process powered by sunlight, the leaves build up or elaborate the complex nutrients required--the sugars, proteins, starches and carbohydrates.

Man has succeeded in duplicating this process in the laboratory as an experiment, but the process takes over a month to complete. The plant makes this conversion from simple minerals to complex nutrients in a matter of seconds.

I have mentioned before that every scrap of the food we eat comes directly or indirectly from the leaves of plants and, if you look over the shelves of your pantry and refrigerator, I don't think you can find a single item--except salt--that didn't originate in the vegetable kingdom. This holds even for seafood--big fish eats little fish, and so on down the line to the last link in the chain, tiny floating sea plants called plankton. Whether we like it or not, in the final analysis all of us are strict vegetarians.

Words Lose Meanings

SYDNEY HARRIS

One of the children, at school, learned the name of Ethelred the Unready, the English king of the 10th century. He asked me what Ethelred was unready for, and why he had been given that sobriquet.

I explained that in Middle English the word "unready" came from the old English word, "redeless," which meant lacking in good judgement. In Hamlet, Shakespeare uses the word in its old sense, in the phrase, "recks not his own rede," which means "doesn't follow his own advice."

Ethelred was called the "unready," therefore, because he was wanting in counsel and had little practical sense. It was simply a polite way of calling him a silly king--which, interestingly enough, he could not have been called in those days, when "silly" meant "blessed" or "innocent," and was a word applied to the infant Jesus!

A few days after this, I was reading a long article about a university, in which it was called "multiversity"--implying that it had been split up into many different schools, and had lost its original unity. This, too, is a misunderstanding of the origin of the word.

The word comes from the Latin universitas, meaning "the whole"; but it does not mean, as is mistakenly supposed, different schools and colleges incorporated into one great body.

When the word was first coined for the British universities in the 12th century, it was done so because of the entire range of literature taught in the colleges--the universitas literarum.

It is true that a university should relate different bodies of knowledge to one another, and provide its students with a broad scope of information on related subjects--but this was not the original purpose of the university, which was then almost wholly devoted to literature and the humanities, ignoring the "coarse" physical aspects of life.

In the Middle Ages, not only did "silly" mean "blessed," but the word "nice" meant "ignorant," the word "quick" meant "living," the word "villain" meant "farmer," the word "passion" meant "suffering," the word "poll" meant "head," the word "pupil" meant "doll," the word "gossip" meant "god-parent," and so on through hundreds more.

This should teach us to be cautious when reading books of other ages, or translations made even a century ago. What the Greeks called a "tyrant" was not what we would call one today; when Plato suggested that the most important parts of education are "music" and "gymnastics," he was not referring to strumming the lute and doing push-ups.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Bond Copyists Busy

ROME (NANA)--James Garner's movie, A Man Could Get Killed is one of the 137 secret-agent adventure stories now being filmed in Europe. Of course, there had to be an Italian movie satire on Goldfinger--Operation Goldfinger--starring Lando Buzzanca, who told me there is a scene in the picture where thugs thrust him down a manhole in New York and the next scene shows him climbing out of another manhole--in London. Whereupon Lando casually straightens his tie and hails a taxi. Let James Bond top that.

But back to Garner who has become so successful since he shook the dust of Maverick from his Western back, that he is now a vice-president of a bank in California. "A few weeks ago," Jim told me, "I saw that Sayonara was playing in New York. I went to see it and flipped when I saw the ad James Garner and Red Buttons in Sayonara." Where was Marion Brando?

James is a worried father. He recently took his 16-year-old daughter from a progressive school in California and enrolled her in a more conservative school in Massachusetts. "She learned folk dancing and pottery and now I'm going to see that she gets an education."

I met one of Italy's newer sex-pots, Maria Grazia Buccella. Maria was Miss Trento, Miss Venice, Miss Italy and finally Miss Europe. "I have an ambition to be a comic actress, a cross between Marilyn Monroe and Shirley MacLaine," said Maria. She is a modest love-goddess. "I feel embarrassed wearing a bikini. Italian men, of course, go mad when they see her on the beach. She would like to move to Hollywood. "Although I suppose men everywhere are the same--only the techniques are different."

Rossano Brazzi will be making his next film, his 108th, in Hollywood, for Warner Brothers, he informed me. "With either Audrey Hepburn or Deborah Kerr." You can't do any better than that. I've made films in four different languages," he told me proudly. It certainly has not hurt his career.

Patches Troubles

This being the summer season of cuts, bruises and abrasions, I've been updating the first aid kit. (Most injuries I fix by kissing it well. But find today's moppets insist on added reassurance of stick-on things.)

"Clear out your medicine cabinet of old prescriptions and consult your doctor." That is what the first aid people advise.

Old medicines, they say, are dangerous.

"Don't try to prescribe for yourself."

Bless us all, I don't try to prescribe for myself. I prescribe for other people.

If I threw out all our old medicines, I simply wouldn't be able to practice. This is like telling me: "Throw out all your old books and consult your librarian."

I have different bottles of poison ivy cure. It is nonsense to throw them away. Somebody always gets poison ivy during the summer. And if one of these things doesn't work, the other will.

I usually treat it with that stuff that dries white on the skin. Then I say: "And don't scratch it!"

Since they scratch anyway, I can always say: "You see! What did I tell you?"

What a doctor does the same. A built-in foxhole.

My mainstay is aspirin. You can do a lot with aspirin--and it can do a lot to you.

Aspirin must be kept out of the reach of small children.

Therefore, we keep aspirin on a shelf you can only reach by climbing on the sink. The sink is usually slippery. And I have treated some first-class bruises from falling off.

I have some leftover medicine that worms cats. I would not use it now though.

Now it has turned brown and quite sticky. I use it for household repairs. One of the wooden knobs keeps coming off the sliding door. I stuck it back with this cat medicine and it is still sticking.

If I threw that medicine away, what would I use? Glue? Not half as good.

My best medical source is a book called, The Ship's Medicine Chest at Sea.

The best feature is that it is full of color photographs of people with horrid-looking ailments. Only a dedicated medicine man (like me) could stand to LOOK at such pictures.

I could cure anybody out of this book. I can even do obstetrics.

"If the ship is not rolling too much, have the expectant mother get up and walk a little."

We have a book, What To Do Until The Doctor Comes. But I don't need it. By the time the doctor comes, I expect to have the patient cured.

Our first aid box contains certain yardages of sterile bandages. But I never found any use for it.

I rely on stick-on plasters. No child in the world that can't be cured by a firm bedside manner and a stick-on plaster.

These plasters have a name of course. But if you mention the name, the company lawyer writes you a letter. He says you are putting the hard-won name into the language. Thus breaking the rice bowls of the stockholders. All widows and orphans.

He leaps over the fact that the company puts the name all over TV commercials.

But I don't want to injure widows and orphans. So I use the product. I just don't use the name.

Do you know what to do for tired eyes? "Massage your eyes briefly with petroleum jelly. Cover the eyes with two thin slices of cucumber and lie down for five minutes." OK?

Perhaps one can argue this film should never have been made. But so one can argue it could have been better made.

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—A Canadian Javelin but the firm was not involved when he was indicted.

Unless Doyle can show good reason in federal court here Monday for his absence Thursday, he risks spending three years, instead of three months, at the federal correctional institution at Danbury.

Doyle was represented by a battery of lawyers in court Thursday when arguments were to have been heard by Judge on a defence motion to reduce the sentence.

LEGAL FIGHT

He was also going to make a last-ditch legal fight at a special hearing to have his prison sentence reduced.

When he failed to appear, Judge T. Emmet Clark ordered Doyle's arrest and the forfeiture of $10,000 cash bail under which the Canadian businessman had been at liberty.

Tall Tale of Love Has Ring of Truth

EDMONTON (CP)—When a policeman got to a shopping centre parking lot early Thursday morning he found no sign of a reported assault. Instead he found two blissful lovers, arm in arm.

He questioned them and found they had been fighting, but had since made up. Then the officer asked why they were still walking aimlessly around the parking lot.

They explained that during their quarrel the girl had thrown her engagement ring at her fiancé.

The policeman joined the search, the ring was found, and the lovers went on their way.

Capitol Receives Stevenson's Coffin

WASHINGTON (AP)—The mortal remains of Adlai E. Stevenson, world statesman, returned to the United States Thursday night in a flag-draped coffin.

President Johnson paid the late U.S. ambassador to the United Nations an unusual tribute by going in a helicopter to nearby Andrews Air Force Base to be present as the body arrived from London.

State Secretary Dean Rusk and several other cabinet members met the plane at the airport.

As the 28 mourners aboard the presidential jet which bore the coffin from London stepped down, Johnson stood at the foot of the ramp to shake hands.

Among the mourners were Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey, and Stevenson's three sons, Adlai III, John Fell, and Borden.

The mourners walked through a joint honor cordon of 40 men representing all the U.S. armed services.

In a white uniform with gold crosses, Chaplain Col. John L. Shea of the military district of Washington led the procession which conducted the coffin to a hearse for its journey to Washington.

Memorial services will be held today at 11 a.m. EDT at Washington's National Cathedral (Episcopal). Johnson will attend. Until the service, the body will lie in repose at the cathedral.

Then the body will be flown to Springfield, Ill., where Stevenson served as governor, to lie in state in the Capitol rotunda until 10 a.m. Sunday.

Burial will be in Bloomington, Ill., Monday. The exact time of this private, family service has not yet been set.

The United Nations in New York, where Stevenson served as ambassador for the United States, will hold a memorial service at 3 p.m. Monday. The president has named Rusk to speak there on behalf of the United States.

The American embassy in London, outside which Stevenson died suddenly Wednesday at the age of 65, informed the state department that death was caused by a heart attack.

Reports Rapped As Lies

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The White House said Thursday that press accounts describing the late Adlai E. Stevenson as dissatisfied with U.S. policy in the Dominican Republic were a disservice to his memory.

At issue was one account by Metromedia radio correspondent David Schoenbrun in Paris and another by CBS correspondent Eric Sevareid in London.

MASSIVE BLUNDER

Schoenbrun said he had dinner in Paris last Friday with Stevenson and roving U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, and that Stevenson described the U.S. intervention in the Dominican Republic as a "massive blunder."

Sevareid said Stevenson told him last Monday he wanted to resign as U.S. ambassador, and furthermore that the Dominican crisis "took several years off my life."

White House press secretary Bill Moyers said today that President Johnson didn't believe the stories.

CANNOT ANSWER

Moyers said Johnson thought it was "a disservice to the memory of any public official of ambassador Stevenson's character and ability to quote him after he is dead and cannot answer."

The grand old man of Bromley approves of Gold Keg Beer.

Who in the world knows more about beer than an Englishman?

Heartily.

Alfie Wells has been drinking beer in and around Bromley for 40 years. You could call him an expert and few men would dare argue the matter.

That's why we were so pleased with Alfie's reaction to Canada's own Gold Keg Beer. He gave it a thorough test. Then he gave it his blessing.

Alfie said: "It's a lovely beer," and after another wee sample he added, "A man could hardly do better!"

Shawnigan Lake Too Late To Row in German Regatta

BONN (Reuters)—Two Canadian schoolboy rowing crews arrived at Ratzburg, West Germany, near Hamburg, to compete in a school regatta, and were told they had come three days too late. The regatta was held last weekend.

This was the second disappointment in Germany for the ace oarsmen of Shawnigan Lake School, Vancouver Island, who came to Europe to take part in the Henley Regatta in England earlier this month. They had also been entered for the Mainz Regatta, scheduled next weekend, but cancelled because of flooding.

Joe Gray, athletics teacher, housemaster and leader of the party of 27, told Reuters on the telephone from a Ratzburg hotel Wednesday night:

"It's just bad luck. We had no reason to doubt everything was arranged. I spoke to the Ratzburg club manager, a Dr. Bloch, at Henley, and he said everything would be fixed up—boats and a match with the local school. But we arrived today to find Dr. Bloch has gone off to Holland. We leave tomorrow on a trip to Rome and a climbing expedition in Switzerland. Naturally, it's a disappointment, but it can't be helped. Just a misunderstanding, I suppose."

TRAINING SESSION

The Ratzburg Rowing Club—winners of a grand challenge cup at the Henley Royal Regatta July 5—hadly arranged a training session for the Canadian boys today.

"We didn't get a taste of the water ourselves, but it was a real pleasure to see the world champions in training," Gray said.

The boarding school boys, aged 17 to 19, travelled to the Rhineland today and planned to take a steamer upriver to Barchach. They will pay a brief visit to Heidelberg before going on to Rome. After mountain climbing in Switzerland, they will return to London for a sightseeing trip before flying to Vancouver Aug. 9.

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP)—The sheriff's office sent several deputies Tuesday night to break up a hot-swinging free-for-all between two softball teams.

One man was in hospital with a possible concussion. Deputies said the fight started over an umpire's decision during a game between teams from the Lutheran Inner Mission and Good Shepherd Lutheran Church.

For Chuvalo

Terrell Target?

TORONTO (CP)—Irv Ungerman, manager of Canadian heavyweight champion George Chuvalo, said Thursday he is "seriously considering" accepting a match for Chuvalo to meet Ernie Terrell of Chicago, World Boxing Association champ, in Chicago in September.

Ungerman confirmed the offer from Terrell's management with Chuvalo, currently listed third in WBA ratings, guaranteed $50,000.

Chuvalo, training in Gravenhurst, Ont., said Wednesday he would like a fight with Terrell "soon because I need another fight to keep sharp."

The Chuvalo camp is gunning for a fight with Cassius Clay, the world's heavyweight champ who is not recognized by the WBA, but has had no news from Clay's management.

It's a tossup between Chuvalo and former heavyweight champ Floyd Patterson as to who will get the next crack at Clay's title.

Ungerman says he is in a tough spot and is still undecided whether to accept the Terrell offer. He feels that if they take Terrell they might lose out on a chance with Clay.

He said: "I'm not sure which way to turn, but I should have an answer by the first of the week."

Meadow Court Ascot Favorite

LONDON (Reuters)—Meadow Court, the Canadian-owned winner of the Irish Derby and runner-up in the Epsom Derby, is rated the odds-on-favorite to win the £31,000 ($83,000) King George and Queen Elizabeth Stakes at Ascot Saturday.

The chestnut, owned jointly by Calgary publisher Max Bell, Vancouver oil executive Frank McMahon and American groomer Bing Crosby, heads a 12-horse field for the 1½-mile event.

Five Irish horses and seven with American connections make up the field. For the first time in the race's 14-year history, no French entry will go to the post. French horses have won the race three of the last four years.

PIGGOTT AGAIN

Meadow Court, bred in Ireland and hauled following its Irish Derby win June 26 as the British Three-year-old of the Year, will be ridden by champion jockey Lester Piggott.

The other Irish contenders are Biscayne, winner of last year's Irish St. Leger and owned by Mrs. John Reid of New York; Bally Joy, owned by John McShain of Philadelphia; and Western Wind and Kmalife, owned by Mrs. Ann Biddle and Mrs. Mary Hecht respectively, both of the United States.

AMERICAN OWNED

Two British-bred entries are American-owned. They are Charles Engelhard's Indiana and Lord Lawrence's Soderini.

Australian jockey Bill Williams will ride another British challenger, Onedrum, while Frenchman Roger Poinclet will be aboard I Say.

The four all-British runners include I Claudius, a doubtful starter; Homeward Bound, the only female entry; and three-year-olds Nilkar and Ballymoral, both entries in this year's Epsom Derby.

Bing Joins Bookies

LONDON (Reuters)—Bing Crosby, part owner of a race horse entered in the King George VI and Queen Elizabeth Stakes at Ascot Saturday, has been made an "honorary bookmaker."

Crosby is joint owner with Calgary publisher Max Bell and Vancouver industrialist Frank McMahon of Meadow Court, winner of the Irish Derby on June 26 and second in the Epsom Derby June 2.

Crosby was invited to become an honorary member of Britain's 2,000-strong Northern Bookmakers Association and recently accepted in a letter received from Hollywood.

George Lodge, the association's chairman, said:

"We hope Bing will run Meadow Court in the Doncaster St. Leger (on Sept. 8) so that we can welcome him as a new member and show him the skills of the trade."

During a visit to Britain and Ireland last month, Crosby praised the role of bookmakers in both countries.

Vancouver Island

For Barged GasBy PATRICK O'NEILL
Island Editor

A multi-million-dollar natural gas system, brought to Vancouver Island by barge, is proposed for five Vancouver Island centres and Powell River.

The Island towns are Courtenay, Ladysmith, Duncan, Port Alberni and Alberni. The company promoting the natural gas system is Cyrogenic Enterprises Limited of Vancouver.

The firm goes before the Public Utilities Commission in August, to get permission to bring gas by barge and release it into pipelines to serve these communities.

Company representative John Montgomery said Victoria and Nanaimo are not definitely in the plans at present.

"We don't feel we are at that stage yet," Mr. Montgomery said Thursday in a telephone conversation from Vancouver.

B.C. Hydro distributes gas in Victoria and Nanaimo.

"If they requested that we supply gas, we would be most happy too," Mr. Montgomery commented.

COMPANY'S GOAL

But for now, the company is shooting for natural gas systems in the Alberni Valley, Duncan-Ladysmith, Courtenay and Powell River.

Mr. Montgomery pointed out some of the company's plans cannot be disclosed before the hearing.

The amount that has been disclosed, was made public in an effort to get support from Ladysmith and Duncan councils for the company's PUC applications.

The plan calls for a $7,000,000 operation, with gas coming to the island in cold storage tanks, then put into regular storage tanks, vaporized as required, and piped into the community gas system.

20-YEAR FRANCHISE

These systems would be installed at no cost to the communities; the company would require a 20-year franchise to build the systems for communities and supply the gas. A three-month supply of gas would be on hand at all times in each community. The natural gas would be available to everyone who wanted it in a community.

The Vancouver plant, which would supply Island points, would be built by September of next year if the PUC approves.

After the system itself is installed by the company, communities would own it. Hook-up charges for residents would be about $35 a house, and natural gas prices would be competitive with those in Vancouver.

Big Job Ahead

Group Studies
Problem
Of Delinquency

Another step towards solving the complex problem of juvenile delinquency in Victoria was taken Thursday night.

The community welfare council's committee on children and youth chaired by Rear Admiral T. Blair McLean held its first meeting in the board room of Spencerhouse.

REVIEWED REPORT

During a round table discussion the committee reviewed the juvenile delinquency study report of 1963-64.

The committee was formed for the following purposes:

- To alert the community of Greater Victoria to the serious problem of juvenile delinquency and to keep it informed of current needs and developments.

- To undertake a continuing study of the problem facing Victoria children, youth and families, and to seek solution to the problems.

- To search for the causes of the wide variation in rates of juvenile delinquency in different areas of the community, and to ascertain what action is required in the more troubled areas.

- To seek ways and means by which the responsibility of parents for the behavior of their children may be impressed upon them and by which parents may be assisted in understanding and dealing with problem children.

- To examine the problem of school dropouts and the related problem of adjustment from school environment to that of employment.

- To improve liaison and co-ordination between all agencies, departments and organizations dealing with juvenile delinquency.

Other members of the committee are: Charles Etchells, superintendent, Greater Victoria Juvenile Detention Home; Rod Todd, Family and Children's Court; Rev. William Z. Van Druten; Mrs. Betty Bryant, Family and Children's Services; W. Bruce Naylor, Esquimalt Junior High School; J. M. Argue, community welfare council.

The next meeting of the committee will be held at Spencerhouse at 8 p.m. July 28.

Blood Donors
Give 258 Pints

Blood donors gave 258 pints to the Red Cross blood bank Thursday, 46 at the University of Victoria and 212 at Red Cross House, 1046 Fort.

Similar response is needed today to bring supplies up to normal, a Red Cross official said last night. Today's clinics will be held from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. and 6:30 to 9 p.m., at 1046 Fort.

Torpedo in Place

Homing in on new resting place is 21-inch torpedo given to B.C. Maritime Museum by RCN. Once-lethal weapon now sits on blocks outside former courthouse in Bastion Square.—(Jim Ryan)

Ale has more bite than beer. It's sharper.
That's because we use more hops. In our hand-picked blend, each different hop flower adds something unique to the final bouquet. If beer is your brew, we wouldn't ask you to change for anything. Invitation to P&O

A letter asking the P & O-transporting a potential 2,300 passengers from the dock area to the public road. "If there is any way of providing these facilities in Victoria the hotels association, said dock- we should go after them," he ing the liners in Victoria would said.

TRANSPORT PROBLEM

Harbormaster Capt. Ronald Newell has already said the liners could be docked at Ogden Point or in Esquimalt harbor.

The principal difficulties appear to be lack of facilities at either point for customs and immigration and a method of

Lesage Guest Speaker Here

Largest UBCM Meet

With an attendance of more than 1,000 delegates and wives, the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention in September will be the largest ever held.

Cecil C. Wyatt, secretary of the intermunicipal committee making arrangements for the annual meeting, said Thursday that, with two months still to go, 80 municipalities have "reported in" and indicated that they will send a total of well over 500 persons.

Inasmuch as there are 128 municipalities in the union the total attendance will be well over 1,000.

About 800 delegates and wives attended the convention last year in Burnaby making it the largest up to that time.

A highlight of the convention will be an address by Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec, at the second major banquet of the convention. In order to make the speech in Victoria the Quebec premier is extending his tour of Western Canada.

Registration will be held on the evening of Sept. 21 and morning of Sept. 22. Banquets will be held at the Victoria Curling Club at the conclusion of business sessions on the evenings of Sept. 22 and 23.

McPHERSON SESSIONS
Business sessions will be held in McPherson playhouse and it is here that problems of interest to the municipalities and the province as a whole will be worked over.

Although the playhouse capacity is not more than about 530 its facilities will not be taxed as many of the wives will not attend business sessions.

Banquet on the first night of the convention will be for "fun and games." Theme will be "A Little Bit of Olds England" and Fred Usher and his group will entertain after which there will be dancing.

A program for the women who attend will include tea at Government House, a coffee and sherry party at city hall, a bus tour of the city and the Butchart Gardens and lunch at the Empress at which a noted travel consultant will be the speaker.

Sign Restrictions

Two Businesses
Join Rebellion

Two Greater Victoria businessmen have joined Wooded Wonderland proprietor Al Petterson in protesting sign restrictions.

Car Looted
In Goods

Thieves broke into a car early Thursday, and looted the vehicle of $1,330 worth of cameras and camera equipment, suitcases, and clothes. The stolen materials belong to Mrs. Lorene A. Lasa, and Mrs. Virginia Allen, both of Sugar Creek, Mo.

The car was parked at the Robin Hood Motel, 136 Gorge, at the time of the robbery.

The thieves gained entry by forcing the front vent window, then unhooking the door.

City police found two suitcases belonging to Mrs. Allen under a nearby tree.

Mr. Petterson Wednesday said he would replace a sign reading "Wooded Wonderland, Turn Left 200 Yards" after it had been removed by officials.

"They pulled my signs down today," said Joseph Carlow of Frontier Village, 2329 Millstream. "Already business is down 50 to 60 per cent."

HAD TWO SIGNS
Mr. Carlow had one sign 1,500 feet on each side of the turnoff to his property.

"I think it was the highway department that pulled the signs down," he said. "I admit I didn't have a permit to put them up but they sure make a difference."

Henny Voorstuijs of the Food Palace, Gorge and Harriet, said Saanich municipality had ordered a sign removed from the road allowance near the store. "It read '130 kinds of cheeses'," he said. "We certainly notice the difference in business. It's just another case of discrimination against the small businessman."

Car Near Death Scene

By IAN SMITH

A small station wagon similar to one driven by David L. Robinson was seen near the scene of Susan Freschi's violent death. The evidence was given Thursday by Thomas Goldie, 25 Knollwood at the preliminary hearing into a capital murder charge against Robinson.

Mr. Goldie testified he saw a grey 1964 to 1966 Hillman station wagon parked near a tree on Atkins Road about 8:10 p.m. May 11.

NEAR LOCATION

Susan Freschi's bound, nude body was found next day in a glade near the location where Mr. Goldie said the vehicle was parked.

He said he noticed the vehicle while on the way to visit friends at 75 Atkins Road.

CAR STILL THERE

"I went back to pick up my dog," said Mr. Goldie, "and the car was still there, but when I returned, the car was gone." He estimated this was about 8:45 p.m.

He said he later noticed a vehicle he believed to be the same one, parked at the corner of Jedburgh and Old Island Highway outside Robinson's address.

He took down the license number and reported it to police, he said.

Under cross-examination by defense counsel Alan Bigelow, he admitted that while a photo in exhibit showed a two-tone car that was only partially grey. It was his impression the vehicle he spotted on Atkins Road was all grey.

DENIAL BY ACCUSED

Police officers who questioned Robinson at his home testified the accused denied being near the scene of the killing.

In a statement read out to the hearing, Robinson stated he had gone straight home after leaving up at the Halfway House beer parlor between 8:30 and 7:30 p.m.

PLAYED SCRABBLE

He told police he had then played scrabble with his wife and watched television until returning to the beer parlor to clean up at 11:30 p.m.

The accused man sat hunched down throughout most of the testimony, but afternoon testimony by police officers elicited two slight outbursts from Robinson.

FOR 12 HOURS

The officers had testified that Robinson had been questioned for about 12 hours until approximately 1:30 a.m. May 26.

Robinson pointed his finger and cried out, "He lies!" when Constable Walter Semenoff said he had been offered food during the interrogation.

GLARED AHEAD

He also glared ahead and said something inaudible during later testimony about the police interrogation.

Constable R. R. Blackmore said police gave the accused a soft drink and some soft ice cream "later in the evening—perhaps as late as 9 p.m."

DOCTOR'S TESTIMONY

During testimony about the girl's injuries by pathologist Dr. Ross McNeely earlier Thursday morning, Robinson had sunk almost out of sight in the dock.

Dr. McNeely testified that while there was no positive evidence, in his opinion the girl had been sexually assaulted prior to her death.

2,000 WOMEN

He was questioned extensively by Mr. Bigelow on this issue, but Dr. McNeely said that he had done post-mortem examinations on approximately 2,000 women during his life and that this was his opinion.

He said death was caused by a "massive blow to the skull" which caused extreme bleeding. The skull was split from ear to ear, and there was virtually no blood left in Susan's body when she was examined by Dr. McNeely.

SEVERAL BLOWS

He said there was evidence of more than one blow, and it was possible that rocks exhibited in court could have been used to inflict the damage.

But the rocks would have to be thrown, or else used to beat the girl, he said, since a casual dropping of one of the rocks could not produce the injuries she received.

The hearing is expected to conclude today.

Saanich Ratepayers To Vote on Schools

Saanich school district ratepayers will vote Saturday on a $1,855,400 school referendum. Costs included in the referendum will be $301,500 for acquiring and developing school sites; $1,221,800 for new buildings and construction of additions; $300,100 for furnishing and equipping buildings, and $132,000 for plans, supervision and contingencies.

Polling places are Beaver Lake School, Brentwood, Cordova Bay, Deep Cove, Kestling Elementary, McTavish Road, Prospect Lake, Saanichton, Saanich Junior High School, Royal Oak Junior High School and the school board office.

It's a must to vote at CHEZ MARCEL Charcoal Broiled Steaks and Superb International Cuisine. Afternoon teas. Sat.—Dinner Dances—9 to 11:30. Open Daily 4 to 10. GR 8-2313 1750 Island Highway

Inns at Outs With Workers

VANCOUVER (CP)—Workers threatening strike action to back wage demands at two hotels here are already Canada's highest paid hotel employees, the B.C. Hotels Association claimed Thursday.

A spokesman made the claim in reply to 600 workers at the Bayshore Inn and Hotel Georgia. The members of the hotel and restaurant employees' and bartenders' union (C.I.O.) rejected as "unrealistic" Wednesday a management offer of a 25-cent hourly increase over three years.

Jubilee at Arena Down East Music Wins West

By CHARLES LA VERTU

The old saying "the best place for down east music is down east" was proved wrong during the Don Messer Jubilee Show Thursday in Memorial Arena.

Take some smooth precision dancing, the soothing voice of Catherine McKinnon, throw in a little Grand Ole Opry and some Scottish and Irish fiddle, add some harsh fiddle playing and you have the Don Messer Show.

HIT OF EVENING

The Buchta Dancers were the hit of the evening with their versions of The White River Stamp (twist, five, and the reel thrown into one); Fiddle Cyprian (as it says); Five Foot Two (Charleston); the Balamut Waltz and the Russian Polka (Ukrainian dances).

While music drowned out the performers in most vocal numbers, the strong popular voice of Catherine McKinnon dominated the show.

Her rendition of Parlez Moi d'Amour and Farewell to Nova Scotia proved especially popular.

COMIC RELIEF

Not to be forgotten were the knee-tapping and foot-stomping variations of Black Mountain Rag by Vic Mullen and Ye All Come featuring Uncle Luke who also provided the comic relief.

Popular Charlie Chamberlain was conspicuous by the short time he was on stage.

Also featured in the show were Don Messer on fiddle, Rae Simmons on clarinet who also doubled as master of ceremonies, Waldo Mullins on piano, Duke Nielsen on bass, Cyril McEachern on guitar, Warren MacCrea on drums and the voice of Marg Osborne.

Kissing Out?

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuters) Rio's administrators Thursday ruled in favor of lovers kissing in public by turning down a proposal to set up a special police squad to stamp out kissing in public parks.

They Trade, Learn Friendship

By BILL STAVDAL

"Sign?" asked a grinning little Japanese girl, holding out her autograph book to a youngster from Guatemala.

He signed, and two more young world citizens had been brought together by Children's International Summer Village.

A unique month in the lives of 32 children began like this Thursday, as a Dayliner clicked north from Victoria to Strathcona Lodge School for Girls on balmy Shawnigan Lake.

Chums Already

They have names like Torstein and Yoshiko, Jose and Olga, Eric and Andy, Pilar, Maria, Susan and Sally. From Norway and Japan and six countries between they come, speaking five languages. They are chums already, and in a month they will be friends.

Since 1951, when the organization was founded by a Cincinnati psychiatrist, Children's International Summer Villages have mixed more than 2,000 youngsters in summer-time youth communities.

Its purpose is simply to teach international fellowship to the young. None of the children at Shawnigan Lake, or any other of this year's nine summer villages, are more than 11 years old.

No Prejudices

"At 11 you have no prejudices yet," explains village director John Berges, a high school teacher from Kitchener, Ont.

After 14 summers, the project is out of the experimental stage and is becoming self-perpetuating.

While Ludwig Greker, an Oslo airline executive, is shepherding his four young Norwegians at Shawnigan Lake, his daughter Turid, 23, is leading another group to Japan.

Repaying Trip

Rick Reichard, 15, a junior counsellor from Kitchener, is working as a volunteer, his way of repaying his own trip to a summer village in Indiana in 1961.

Four children each from eight countries have moved into a student dormitory at Strathcona Lodge.

Besides Japan, Guatemala and Norway, also represented are the U.S., Denmark, Mexico, the Philippines and Canada.

Canadians

The Canadian youngsters are Clair Denninger of Lake Cowichan, Andrew Petter and Trudy Clark of Victoria, and Wendy Walsh of Nanaimo. Wendy missed the opening because she is sick at home.

As it has for thousands of years, trade quickly broke the language barrier. It started on the Dayliner, and minutes after the unpacking at Shawnigan Lake, blond Scandinavians were blowing notes on Philippine conch shells.

Adult counsellor Priscilla "Fritz" Aragon, a Manila architect, reported that her four little Filipinos bought so many trading souvenirs in Hawaii that the party had to acquire an additional suitcase.

Trade Clothes

"They even trade their clothes," she said.

"As soon as they open their bags they start trading, and there's no use trying to interfere," said director John Berges.

"Trading is the easiest way for them to feel each other out."

For the next 30 days the village will rise at 7:30 a.m. and begin the day with flag-raising, making beds and cleaning rooms.

A regular morning will see the youngsters taking part in arts and crafts, games and swimming. After lunch they have 75 minutes to themselves.

An afternoon may have them hiking, holding a junior parliament or carrying on special projects.

The eight nationalities will take turns providing entertainment in the evenings.

Special events will enliven the weeks. This Sunday Indian dancers from Duncan and Victoria will perform.

The boys and girls will also visit the Butchart Gardens, tour Victoria, and visit nearby homes. On Aug. 10 they will see Vancouver.

"They get along well from the beginning," said Mr. Berges. "They can laugh together right at the start, but toward the last they are holding serious little chats."

"The last day is the saddest one of all. They are hugging and crying — it's coming in buckets."

"You can see the bond they have formed."

Civic Leaders Balk At Regional Scheme

Municipal leaders balked Thursday at a provincial plan to form a regional district in the Greater Victoria area. They hope to meet Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell and ask him some sharp questions.

Oak Bay Reeve Allan Cox and Reeve Hugh Curtis of Saanich said they had no intention of committing their municipalities to regional planning "until the end of time" without an expression of opinion from the ratepayers.

It looks as though the cart is before the horse, said Reeve Cox, commenting on a letter from the minister in which details of the scheme were outlined.

AMBIGUOUS

The important phase of the regional district proposal was that governing planning, and this had reference to some sections of the Municipal Act which were, to say the least, ambiguous, said Reeve Cox.

"I think we should be very careful. There are a lot of things to be cleared up," he said.

A municipal council could under the act commit its municipality to the regional planning either by acceding to the Campbell proposal or by failing to act, said Reeve Cox.

PITFALLS

It could, by agreement or by non-action within 60 days, find itself included arbitrarily in the district by order-in-council.

Or, alternatively, a council could call a referendum within 60 days. If the ratepayers said no, the municipality could opt out.

"This means that if Oak Bay or Saanich council doesn't call for a referendum, the people can scream all they want and they will still be taken into a regional district. Under this plan a community can lose by default," said Reeve Cox.

'CONSULT RATEPAYERS'

"It seems to me pretty fundamental that where a municipality is put into a position where it can't opt out of a plan, the ratepayers should be consulted," said Victoria City Manager Dennis Young.

"Well I certainly don't think any council has a mandate to commit its ratepayers until the end of time and I, for one, wouldn't take the responsibility," Reeve Curtis said.

One question the reeves and mayor will ask the minister is: "Are we into our 60 days of decision right now?"

Curtis

Cox

Work load for the regional district's directors at first is to be limited to things to which the various councils have already agreed, such as regional parks, planning and firecracker regulations.

Other regional functions listed:

● Sewer survey study and consideration of means for implementation.

● A study of the Victoria Water District Act to recommend changes "with a view to future inclusion of water supply as a function of the regional district."

In the matter of regional parks, the municipality of Sooke is excluded from participation and from payment of its share of costs.

POWER LIMITED

"The power of the regional district under this function would be limited to the acquisition of real property and would not include the development, operation and maintenance of regional parks."

First directors will be elected during the 1965 municipal elections, with six interim directors to be appointed for electoral areas until elections can be held.

They are: Colwood, William Reader; Langford, Ralph N. Willing; Metcalfe, Kenneth Rainey; North Saanich, James B. Cumming; Sooke, John E. Martin; and View Royal, Albert F. Beasley.

WHOLE REGION

Called the Regional District of the Capital of British Columbia, it will also include Victoria, Central Saanich, Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Sidney. Boundaries are to be the same as those of the three lower island-school districts of Victoria, Saanich and Sooke.

Ten Children Going to Camp

About 10 Victoria diabetic children will attend the B.C. division of the Canadian Diabetic Association's Camp Hukwa, near Kelowna this summer.

About 70 youngsters from all over B.C. are expected to attend the two-week camp, which begins Aug. 16.

The Victorians will be flown to Vancouver for the rest of the trip.

Estimates Sought

Family Court Building Goal of Municipalities

By A. H. MURPHY
City Hall Reporter

A giant step in the direction of a badly-needed new family court for the area was taken Thursday by intermunicipal leaders who adopted most of the recommendations in a major report on juvenile delinquency.

For years there have been complaints about the lack of accommodation for the family court — overcrowding, poor lighting and bad ventilation.

'MOVE FORWARD'

What Mayor Wilson called a "move forward" was the intermunicipal committee decision to allocate $2,000 to the family and children's court committee to get architectural estimates for a new building.

The new structure will probably be placed on city-owned land adjacent to Spencerhouse on Cook Street, where welfare services, board of health offices and the detention home are located.

COST UNKNOWN

What it will cost was not known. An estimate, made three years ago, was for $125,000.

A full-time family court judge and a full-time prosecutor were also urged by the Community Welfare report which was completed in November, 1964.

PSYCHOLOGISTS

Another recommendation in the report, which was endorsed in principle, was that social workers or psychologist be added to school staffs to cope with troubled children.

"I can't see this. I may be old-fashioned, but in my day the teachers did all this," said Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele.

NOT ENOUGH HOURS

"There are not enough hours in the day for the teacher to do it now," replied Coun. Gerald Horne, also of Esquimalt and himself a teacher.

The question of whether an "under-18" offender should be convicted in open court under the Highway Traffic Act or tried and labelled as a juvenile, as they now are, was unresolved.

Committee members agreed that before any juvenile is committed to a training school he should be given a mental examination.

Welfare council secretary Jack Anguish said that 28 boys were examined at a provincial training school last year. Four were found to have severe brain damage and four more were psychotics. Others were found to be mentally impaired to a lesser degree.

NO FACILITIES

"These youngsters would never have been in such a place, which has no facilities to deal with them, if they had received mental examinations," Mr. Anguish said.

Honeymoon

Sweeter When Short

By JOE DELL

CHICAGO (AP) — The honeymoon is much sweeter when short, says a wedding consultant, and short honeymoons are better for a marriage, too.

"The most surprising thing is that many times a couple gets bored with each other on a long honeymoon," consultant Louis Seno said in an interview.

"The shorter the honeymoon, the better, and two weeks is the most I'd advise," he said.

Seno, a wedding consultant for 20 years, said the anxiety and excitement leading to the wedding put a couple on their best behavior.

"Then suddenly they are married. They think they know each other, but then they start spending 24 hours a day together, and discover they don't. In a strange resort, surrounded by strangers, the discovery that prince charming snores or has a few minor faults can be devastating."

"The newly married couple obligate each other to constant entertainment. They see little or nothing connected with their home life."

Seno, 41, and father of four, said a short honeymoon gives the couple a chance to be alone, and that the return home means the real beginning of happiness.

"At home, even though it's a brand new apartment, a bride can take things in stride," Seno said. "The man gets up and goes to work, and the wife has a chance to relax, do her daily chores and dismisses the little frailties of her husband."

Seno said the most susceptible persons to a soured honeymoon are women who have lived with their parents and have made few trips.

"The more the honeymoon, the more they look forward to a trip—and stretch it too long," he said. "Many women end up getting homesick . . . and as a result impatience and misunderstanding develop."

Seno said he wouldn't think of changing the age-old honeymoon tradition, however.

"A honeymoon is necessary and if possible, both persons should see new, romantic places," he said. "But just don't make it too long."

Seno said the long honeymoon is a throwback to a primitive era when men kidnapped their brides and had to stay out of sight until the girl's tribe cooled off.

"But this is no longer a problem," he said.

Ann

Landers

Dear Ann Landers: When I read your column yesterday I was sure the Chicago wind must have blown your brains out. What do you mean by telling a 41-year-old woman she should be thrilled to be having a baby?

That woman has a son in college and two girls in high school. She was just beginning to enjoy life and now she has to start over with diapers, 2 a.m. feedings, shots, sitters, high chair, stroller—the whole bit.

I was 38 when my third son was born. I got sick and tired of having everyone tell me how happy I should be. No woman who had a child under eight opened up a mouth. It was always the ones with college kids and hysterectomies who gave me the "you're so lucky" routine.

I wasn't happy about it then and I'm not happy about it now. This boy is harder to raise than all the others put together. Whenever I take him any place people ask me my grandson's name. I am living for the day when I can get this kid in school so I can get off tranquillizers and back on food.—MRS. A. WRECK

Dear Mrs.: I suspect your letter was written at the end of an exhausting day. Let's hear from you after you've had a good night's sleep—about five years from now.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you printed a letter from a career woman who was furious because people kept asking her why she wasn't married. Finally she hit on an answer that silenced them promptly. Her reply, "Just lucky, I guess."

I am a business woman, 30, who is faced with a similar problem. I live in a fashionable, well-furnished apartment—alone. When people ask me where I live I say, "The Fountain Plaza." The next question is, "With another girl?" I reply, "No, I live alone." The eyebrows shoot up and the jaws drop—then embarrassed silence. The inference that only a kept woman or a sex maniac would live alone infuriates me.

I live alone because I like privacy. Expensive? Yes. But I'd rather not have a car, or a fur coat, or a trip to the Orient. Can you think of an answer to put these clods in their place?—SOLO AND HAPPY.

Dear Solo: The next time someone asks if you have a roommate say, "No, I live alone because I like to do my housework in the nude." That should clear their sinuses.

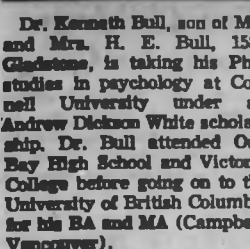

Dear Ann Landers: My heart goes out to "Heartache in New Haven"—the mother whose handsome, bright and promising son got married and is accepting gifts and support cheques from his in-laws.

When I married four years ago my parents gave us a beautiful wedding but refused to give us anything more. It was my husband's grandmother, not his parents, who stepped in and presented us with a blank cheque to buy furniture. She let us know there was plenty more where that came from. We thought Grandma was great and that my parents were selfish and miserly—and we said so.

We soon learned Grandma's generosity had some interesting strings attached. Before long we discovered we had no life of our own. Grandma figured since she had been so generous we owed her our lives, and she was there to collect—every day—in one way or another.

We ended up giving everything back, and since we've been on our own we've been much happier and closer. We appreciate my parents more than ever. They give us nothing but their wonderful company—when we want it—and we love and respect them.—D.H.D.

Dear D.H.D.: Making it on your own is one of life's great joys. Aren't you glad you didn't miss it.

Guard of Honor Formed By Cathedral Servers

Members of Christ Church Cathedral Guild formed a guard of honor for fellow member, Mr. James Richard Laing and his bride, the former Sandra Joanne Glover when they left the Cathedral following their marriage last Saturday.

Rev. Dean Brian Whitlow performed the ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald E. Glover, 381 Windermere Place and the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Harold Laing, 1238 Carnegie.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a full length gown of white tulle styled with tiny cap sleeves, princess neckline. Swiss guipure lace applique enhanced the fitted bodice and skirt that fell into a train.

Floral petals and crystal chandeliers held her tiered veil of tulle and she carried a bouquet of yellow gladiolus, forget-me-nots, white delphinium and lily.

Mrs. Curtis Hecking was matron of honor, Miss Gerry Miller, bridesmaid and Miss Mary Ann Glover, junior bridesmaid.

They wore identical floor-length gowns of white lace over sea foam green peau de soie and floral handkerchiefs of matching green tulle. Their bouquets were of yellow and white anemones.

Mr. Ronald Glover was best man and Mr. Ray Christie and Mr. George Crombie showed guests to the pew.

Mr. Geoffrey Thornburn was organist, Mr. Bill Dyson was soloist.

The groom's brother, Gerry Laing was the server at the couple's communion.

A reception was held at Holywood House where the bride's table was covered with a lace and linen cloth belonging to her grandmother. The three tiered cake was trimmed with yellow roses.

After a honeymoon at Island Hall in Parksville the couple will live in the Tahitian Apartments. The bride's going away ensemble was a two piece beige lace suit, mohair straw hat, emerald and gold cymidium orchid corsage.

Maple Bay To Be Home Of Couple

Penticton shared interest with Victoria in the recent wedding at Central Baptist Church of Sylvia Grace Wedman and Mr. Maurice Richardson. Rev. Robert Holmes officiated at the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyall Wedman, 3220 Frechette Street, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Howard Richardson, Penticton.

Before the ceremony Mrs. E. Richards played the Lord's Prayer on the violin. Miss Patricia Perry sang 'O Perfect Love' during signing of the register. Miss Phyllis Hick was organist.

An exquisite floor-length gown of white silk organza styled with lace bodice was chosen by the bride for her wedding. The gown's scalloped neckline formed a V in back from which fell a panel train of silk organza enhanced with lace trim. A pearl tiara caught her short three-tiered veil.

Miss Sharon Wedman, maid of honor for her sister, and the Misses Lorna Richardson and Susan Wedman, sisters of the young couple, wore turquoise peau de soie gowns with lace over-jackets.

Mr. Gerald Richardson of Dawson Creek, groom's brother, was best man. Ushering were Mr. Allan Wedman, bride's brother; Mr. Cecil Dickinson and Mr. Milo Coldren.

Mr. Coldren proposed a toast to the bride at the reception. Mrs. J. Benner and the Misses Viola Benner and Patricia Perry sang as a trio during the reception.

For a honeymoon trip up Island the bride donned a three-piece suit in turquoise. She wore a matching hat and white accessories.

In the fall the newlyweds will make their home at Maple Bay where they will both be teaching.

Automation Comes to Credit Rating

By IAN SMITH
Maybe the machine will break down, but it's not likely. This would seem to be the last hope, however, for those who have not been paying their bills since the installation of new filing equipment at the Victoria Credit Bureau.

Automation has come to the Credit Bureau in a big way—$12,000 worth of automation. "Now they've got you for life," commented Geoff Ellis of the bureau. "The machine never forgets." The machine consists of a rack of 18,000 file cards, each one notched distinctively according to a code. They—and your credit rating—are available at the press of a key.

"There's no more misfiling," said Mr. Ellis. "If a card is wanted, it is found just like that. There's no such thing as putting it in the wrong place."

SORTED OUT
Of course, there was the case in which one of the girls forgot to notch a file card. You can imagine the trouble that caused, but they finally got it sorted out, and it shouldn't happen again.

Mr. Ellis estimates that the new system will save 25 to 30 per cent in time alone.

NO ONE MISSED
"Debtors will get the gears faster," he said. "Nobody will be missed."

He hastened to add, however, that "we're not a 'bloodstone' collection agency. We don't have people out in the dead of night knocking on doors."

EXTENSION
"We're really just an extension of credit departments in businesses around the city."

Maybe it's a step forward, but there are some who may regard it as a step closer to 'Brave New World.'

FILE FRAMES LOST
But it's not that bad, yet, because the system isn't quite operational.

There was a problem, you see, in that a batch of file frames were lost en route in the U.S., and they haven't been able to locate them yet.

An error by a computer, perhaps?

Diversion Will Reroute Water

Low Bid on Columbia Tunnels

REVELSTOCK, B.C. (CP)—A consortium of four construction firms Thursday submitted an apparent low bid of $21,125,250 for construction of two 45-foot-diameter diversion tunnels at the site of the Mica Dam Project, 82 miles north of here.

The two tunnels, one 3,000 feet and the other 3,200 feet long, will reroute the Columbia River while work is done on a section of the dry river bed in 1967.

The bid was submitted by Perini Pacific Ltd., Northern Construction and M. W. Stewart Ltd., and Morrison-Knudsen of Calgary.

Excavation of rock will start in August and will be completed in July, 1968. Lining of the tunnels with 20 inches of concrete will be completed by June, 1967. B.C. Hydro and Power Authority officials estimate close to 12,000,000 cubic yards of rock will be removed.

Survey Results Blasted

A former Prince Edward Islander took exception Wednesday to results of a public opinion survey published in the Colonist that morning.

The opinion survey conducted by the Colonist had found that many Victorians favored spending money to develop the north end of Vancouver Island rather than on a federal government plan to connect Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick by a causeway.

But 55-year-old W. A. Large, 1140 Bay, is in vehement disagreement with this.

"What do people out here know about Prince Edward Island?" he asked. "They don't know how much transportation trouble they had at the turn of the century."

He said that at that time residents were forced to travel in a small open boat in the dead of winter, sometimes having to push it over ice.

"They have had to put up with a lot back there," said Mr. Large. "They deserve everything that's coming to them."

"It may be all right to develop Vancouver Island, but they deserve help back there. I'm really angry about this."

"Just what do Victorians know about it, anyway?" He has lived in Victoria for 32 years since leaving Prince Edward Island.

The controversial question of cab fares in Victoria will be passed along to the B.C. Public Utilities Commission if city council has its way.

City solicitor Terry O'Grady will discuss the matter with the PUC and he and City manager Dennis Young will attempt to work out a solution.

One faction of cab operators wants an increase in long-haul fares and a subsidy group disagrees.

The PUC comes into the picture because it regulates fares outside the municipality.

An award of $400 has been presented to former Victorian RCN Lieut. H. J. Law for showing the navy it did not need a new piece of wireless equipment.

As a result of Lieut. Law's report the navy was saved the cost of additional equipment and the building of special quarters to house it.

Lieut. Law is formerly of 2200 Orville Street. He served aboard

HMCS Uganda, Ontario, Beacom Hill and with the Pacific Command minesweeper squadron.

City police took a 19-year-old Ontario girl to Royal Jubilee Hospital Wednesday, after the car in which she was riding was in collision with a second car at Catherine and Wilson.

Lynn Nicholls was treated for leg injuries and released later the same day.

She was a passenger in a car driven east on Wilson by John H. Nicholls, which was in collision with a car driven by Edna Ford, 613 Fairway, travelling north on Catherine.

The Portage Inlet and George Waterway Association will not give up the fight until pollution is no longer a problem, according to spokesman Howard Roberts.

"Our association at present is working hard to stop pollution of our George waterway and we do not intend to deviate from this problem until it is decided pollution will no longer be a problem to the waterway," said Mr. Roberts.

"Then, we will move to support an improvement plan which shall be deemed proper by the government, the city and municipalities for benefit of the entire Greater Victoria area," he added.

More than 140 skaters have entered the 8th annual B.C. Invitational Free Skating and Dancing Championships, to be held in Esquimalt Sports Centre, July 21 and Aug. 1.

Skaters from B.C., California, Oregon, Washington and Alberta have entered the competition.

Among the entrants are Karen Magnusson of Vancouver, Canadian junior champion, and Sharon Baker, Berkeley, Calif., the U.S. junior champion.

Deadline for the Changing Face of Victoria photo competition is Aug. 7, contest chairman Bob Goldart announced Wednesday.

Organized by Kenneth Gravner, the contest is being held in conjunction with Show Parade

City solicitor Terry O'Grady will discuss the matter with the PUC and he and City manager Dennis Young will attempt to work out a solution.

Oriental Like B.C. Apples
VANCOUVER (CP)—Sales of British Columbia apples have jumped in Southeast Asia and the Orient and part of the increase is a result of retail sales of one or two apples at a time.

Representatives here of the Okanagan apple producers say the sales for the 1964-65 crop year in Southeast Asia totalled 122,000 bushels, a four-fold increase over the previous year.

Not only are the apples a valuable commodity in an area such as Hong Kong, but the cartons in which they are shipped are bartered or sold.

CURBSIDE
A recent visitor to Hong Kong said an apple vendor fills two round baskets and sets up shop on a curbside. Prices are quoted by the single apple and there is usually careful study before an apple is bought.

The Chinese apparently prefer the B.C. fruit, especially the red Delicious, to the less eye-appealing fruit from the Chinese mainland.

The United Kingdom is the biggest customer of Okanagan fruit with sales in the 1964-65 crop year up 25 per cent to 1,045,000 bushels.

A total of 1,834,180 bushels, a gain of 300,000 over the previous year, was shipped to all markets.

I'd love a private jet, a pet film star, two Ferraris, an all-over suntan, a panda to play with, a villa in Rome, and right now a long cool glass of sparkling summerborn B.C. Cider

Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENKEN and RICHARD L. FREY

Bridge differs from other high-skill games in that you can be fully competent to execute a certain play, but miss it through a momentary "blind spot." You can be a very fine player and still goof this simple little deal.

The Schenken system and South to the winning game on a deal where it would be easy to land in three no-trump — a contract which is doomed on the likely spade lead, provided East-West shift to diamonds where declarer holds up the spade ace. South held the near-minimum for the Big Club opening (17 points including distribution), but North took a good position when he raised to three hearts on the second round instead of bidding no trump. However, declarer felt victim to a "mirage" play which led him to defeat. Can you see your way to ten tricks after West has opened the spade jack?

Declarer figured that, on the likely 3-2 trump break, his only headache would be to look after the fourth diamond — no problem if diamonds divided evenly, but a 3-3 division is odds-against, declarer attempted to set the stage for a diamond ruff in dummy. Having won the spade ace, he played ace and another diamond and the hand fell apart when West won, cashed a third diamond and led a fourth for East to overruff the dummy. This meant three tricks for the defense, and West still had to get a trump trick.

Declarer's campaign plan would have worked well enough on some 4-2 diamond breaks. (Example: if the defender with the doubleton diamond also has three trumps.) But there is a nice play which infallibly brings in ten tricks as long as trumps are 3-2; having won the spade opening, declarer should immediately ruff a spade and when both defenders follow to the trump ace and king, declarer can claim his contract. He simply ruffs two more spades in his hand, using clubs as dummies. Even if he is overruled at any stage, dummy's trump ten provides a game-taking trick.

'Year to Live' Stretched For More Than 45 Years

By BOB PETHICK
A man who was given a year to live after being gassed in the First World War celebrated his 90th birthday Thursday. Short, slim and spry George Pearce, 605 Cornwall, who has seen the best and worst years in Moose Jaw, Sask., recalled the incident during the war when doctors had made the prediction. He chuckled. "I guess I fooled them," he said.

No Admission —And Later No Apology

CHECOTAH, Okla. (UPI)—The administrator of a hospital that turned away a pregnant woman a short time before she suffered a miscarriage said Thursday he had "no apology to make."

Mrs. Charles Ray Murray and her husband hitchhiked to the Checotah hospital last night from their home at Hitchita, Okla., and were told she would not be admitted.

The couple then started a 17-mile walk to Muskogee, Okla., but a highway patrolman picked them up and Mrs. Murray suffered a miscarriage in the back of the patrol car.

Trooper Don Wickoff said Mrs. Murray "almost bled to death" before the patrol car reached a Muskogee Hospital, where she was admitted.

"We have no apology to make," Dr. Charles E. Mitchell, administrator of the Checotah Hospital, was quoted as saying.

"This is a sort of unfortunate thing. There are a lot of reasons to wonder why this couple was in the predicament it was in. Why were they on the high-

U.S.-Canada Union Men In Hassle

AMSTERDAM (UPI)—The International Confederation of Free Trades Unions (ICFTU) wound up its eighth congress Thursday in a heated squabble between the United States and Canada.

In an emotion-filled voice, Canadian delegate Donald McDonald charged AFL-CIO representative George Meany was trying to play power politics and increase America's influence in the executive board.

TEMPERS
"We will not accept this as long as we live," McDonald thundered out in the meeting hall, and the congress had to suspend its session half an hour for tempers to cool.

The result of the fracas was that the congress failed to elect an executive board. It did, however, re-elect Belgium's Over Becu secretary-general.

DEMANDS
Meany yesterday demanded four seats for America in the North American section of the board instead of the traditional three. Canada is allotted two seats in the five-man section.

Today, McDonald charged Meany was trying to push the Canadian trade union men around. Later he agreed to talk the matter over with Meany and Swedish ICFTU president Arne Geyer.

It was decided the outcome of the squabble would be announced in November.

PLEAS
American trade union leader Walter Reuther made a plea at the closing session for a general ban on atomic arms and "unilateral disarmament subjected to international control."

Ex-Aide Denies Guilt

Back in 1939, when Mr. Pearce first came to Moose Jaw, he signed on as a ranch hand at Bennie's Grove, a famous farm and landmark in the area. The farm was noted for its Clydesdale horses.

Mr. Pearce was a cowboy, rounding up 150 head of cattle, and after a few years he became famous throughout the district as "the man with the fast horse."

WON RACES
With his little 14-hand-high horse, Dan, Mr. Pearce took on the best of Montana horseflesh and beat all comers.

The races were carried out in what is now Moose Jaw's golden mile.

"I suppose I am still jockey weight," said Mr. Pearce. During the years at Bennie's Grove, Mr. Pearce and his housekeeper, Miss Jennie Hembley, who joined him in 1914, can look back on floods, fire and hardship.

Residents at Bennie's Grove on one occasion were awakened by a barking dog just in time to see to safety in the waist-high waters of Moose Jaw Creek.

FARMING CHANGED
Farming changed during his lifetime on the Prairies.

"I can remember when a man would come to the farm and buy a couple of oxen. He would break them before he was off the property, then start farming. Nowadays it costs at least $40,000 to get started," he said.

GOOD YEARS
"The last 30 years have been good years. Anyone who didn't make a little money farming on the Prairies must have been awfully stupid," he said.

Asked if he had ever married, Mr. Pearce threw up his arms in mock horror. "No, No, No," he said.

Said his housekeeper, Miss Hembley, "He kept away from women. Maybe that's why he's lived so long."

Bolshoi Ballet Dancer Dies

MOSCOW (AP)—Mikhail M. Gabovich, 60, one of the Bolshoi Ballet's top dancers before and after the Second World War, is dead, the newspaper Sovetskaya Kultura (Soviet Culture) reported Thursday. He began his career in 1924 with the Bolshoi.

Multiple Fractures in Crash

Navy Cadets to Naden Hospital

Four HMCS Venture officer training cadets were rushed to HMCS Naden Hospital early Thursday after a car-truck collision on the Patricia Bay Highway.

Robert Allen Kelly, 25, college training cadet from UBC, is in fair condition with a double leg fracture and a dislocated hip.

Also in fair condition is William F. Murray, 19, of Vancouver, a Regular Officers Training Plan cadet from UBC, with head injuries and fractures to both ankles.

In good condition are Brian L. Macneil, 19, of McAdam, N.B., a University of New Brunswick ROTP cadet who received minor lacerations; and Ian G. McGill, 17, of Saskatoon, ROTP cadet, who sustained minor back injuries.

Fiats Go Red

WARSAW (AP)—Both the Soviet Union and Poland are negotiating for licences to manufacture Italy's Fiat automobile, Italian sources said Thursday.

Police said Kelly was driving the car carrying the cadets south on the highway when the left side of his vehicle was in collision with the front end of a parked truck, and careened into a telephone pole north of Claremont Avenue.

Lasers Kill Cancer

By DELOS SMITH
UPI Science Editor

NEW YORK—A hurried and encouraging message is being circulated through the world of cancer research. It announces that an anti-cancer drug and amplified, concentrated light waves will kill a cancer completely.

Neither will do it alone. The discovery that the two can do it together was made by three scientists of the National Cancer Institute, Bethesda, Md. They had no time in tipping off cancer scientists throughout the world.

BRIGHT
No one should suppose this is anything more than just a promise of a new and highly effective anti-cancer weapon. But it is a bright promise which could be realized within a foreseeable time if enough scientists undertook the laborious experiments it calls for.

For that reason John Peter Minten, George H. Weiss and Marvin Zelen shared their experimental findings in the technical journal, "Nature," which reaches more laboratories more quickly than any other. They experimented with an experimental cancer of mice, one anti-cancer drug and the laser.

RESULTS
It is a device which stimulates the emission of radiation in the range of visible light and vastly amplifies it. It is the so-called "death ray," since it can make a "coherent" light beam so very intense it is capable of vaporizing any substance upon which it is focused and that includes steel—and cancers.

But the laser still is an experimental device and its experimental use against cancers, human as well as animal, have had disappointing results so far. The beam is extremely small and vaporizing intensity is of extremely short duration. Experimentally laser beams have been unable to kill cancer completely.

Premiers Want Cash

OTTAWA (CP)—Several provinces are expected to press the federal government next week to alter both the size and format of its aid to higher education.

At least six of the provincial premiers attending the federal-provincial conference which opens here Monday have indicated they will ask Ottawa to increase the direct grants it now provides for Canada's universities.

FORMULA CHANGE
And two of them have served notice that, as well as larger grants, they would like to see a sharp change in the formula on which the program is based.

Indications are that, whatever their form, provincial proposals on this subject will draw no immediate commitment from the federal side of the table.

BLADEN REPORT
Pressed in the Commons in recent months for increased aid to higher education, Finance Minister Gordon and other government spokesmen have made it clear they want to see the Bladen report on higher education before making any decisions.

The report, being made to the Canadian Universities Foundation by Vincent W. Bladen, dean of arts at the University of Toronto, will assess the financial needs of Canadian universities for the next decade.

and recommend both the sources and methods by which the need can be met.

TAKE CHANCE
The issue of federal aid to higher education was placed on the federal-provincial agenda to give the premiers an opportunity to make representations in advance of the Bladen report. Most of them are expected to take advantage of the opportunity.

Several premiers are expected to argue that the 25-per-cent formula, unchanged for the last two years, had fallen out of line with university costs and enrollment.

MARVELLOUS MARINER SNAPS MARS

From UPI, AP

PASADENA, Calif.—Marvelous Mariner 4 sent Earth its first closeup snapshot of the mysterious planet Mars, and began transmitting a second picture Thursday.

A fantastically weak but steady stream of radio signals carried the photograph bit-by-bit more than 134,000,000 miles through space—a process so delicate it took 8 hours, 35 minutes to transmit a single picture.

Within minutes, a project spokesman said, "We can confirm—repeat confirm—that contrast is being seen" in the early lines of the second photograph.

10,000 MILES
It was taken from an altitude of 10,000 miles and showed an area about 200 miles square. An enlargement showed a triangular area in the desert's center.

There were several smudges, or blotchy areas.

HISTORIC PHOTO

Dr. R. B. Leighton describing the historic first photo at a news conference Thursday night in the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, said scientists expect to have difficulties with the Mariner pictures because:

● "Mars has a flat, low-contrast surface, which is difficult to photograph."

● "The side of Mars we are observing is considered to be one of the most difficult for seeing details."

● "The camera has a certain amount of fog in it—reducing the contrast. This will render pictures somewhat more difficult in the processing stage."

Several of the camera's scan lines failed somehow, causing streaks across the frame.

SHOWED SLIDES
Dr. Leighton showed slides of the first Mars picture and said that what appeared in the picture to be a slight haze over the rim of the planet may have been "some kind of fog in the camera."

The picture was taken Wednesday night as Mariner whizzed by Mars in the climax of its photo mission. It was recorded on tape, then sent to earth in an 8½-hour transmission Thursday.

BETTER PICTURES
Experts hope a total of 20 pictures will be received in a 10-day period, with the shots getting progressively better due to closer proximity to the planet and an improving camera angle.

Prescription for Unity

Douglas Pledges 'Fight of Life'

TORONTO (CP)—The New Democratic Party ended a four-day convention Thursday with a new prescription for national unity and a declaration from leader T. C. Douglas that the party will put up the fight of its life in the next election campaign.

The 800 delegates, who came to the national convention buoyed up by recent by-election successes, completed their four days of deliberations with a standing ovation for Mr. Douglas, who was re-elected for another two-year term without a dissenting voice.

And the business ended as it started—on national unity.

A final resolution said Canada faces the gravest crisis in her history. It added:

"In this crisis the New Democratic Party proposes that Canada should adopt a new and dynamic approach to Confederation which will balance a strong federal framework of leadership with an expanded opportunity for provincial and regional development."

QUEBEC SINGLED OUT

And, for the second time in the convention, Quebec was singled out for special treatment. A Canadian constitution must "recognize, clarify and define the special status of Quebec as the guardian of the French language, tradition and culture and guarantee to French-speaking minorities throughout Canada the same constitutional rights as the English."

Scotsman Pays— Calls Tune

TORONTO (CP)—A Scotsman paid the piper and called the tune as well at the New Democratic Party convention here Thursday.

John Robertson, 35, who came to Canada 14 years ago from Dundee, Scotland, was linked at delegate David Middleton of Toronto who applauded Wednesday when Adlai Stevenson's death was announced.

So Mr. Robertson hired for $20 a piper in full kilt regalia and had him play lunchtime laments in the convention lobby.

"I did it to teach a small lesson to people," Mr. Robertson said. "People should respect the dead."

Who's Probing Earth As We Probe Mars?

CANBERRA (AP)—A mysterious glowing object—hovering near Canberra airport while the U.S. Mariner space probe was taking pictures of Mars—has baffled experts in Canberra. Air traffic control officers and other expert aircraft observers said they spotted the object Thursday.

Six members of the traffic control tower crew said it hung unperched at about 5,000 feet for 10 minutes. When the sun glinted off it, it became clearly visible, they said. It disappeared when an air force plane was sent out to identify it.

For Long Haul in Viet Nam

Johnson Wants Economy Put Into Fighting Trim

From UPI, Reuters
WASHINGTON — President Johnson Thursday ordered administration officials to conduct a major overhaul of the new national budget, getting the U.S. economy in trim for the South Vietnamese War.

Johnson requested department heads and fiscal officials composing a special task force on government cost reduction to cut proposed spending in the budget because of rising costs of the war and new federal programs for education, medical care and housing.

MET TASK FORCE
After the president met with the task force, the White House made public the text of his remarks. The meeting was called to discuss the budget for fiscal 1967, which goes to Congress in January.

Johnson gave these instructions to cabinet officers, agency heads and their budget planners:

● "Hold no program sacred. No program—no matter how long established—should be free of a cold and searching examination. Let me worry about the political problems—I'll make those decisions. Some decisions may be unpopular for a time, but sanity and sense will be far more popular in the long run."

● Real savings are going to come from reducing or eliminating obsolete programs. While I do want you to find more efficient ways of running existing programs, I don't want you to concentrate so heavily on that aspect that you refrain from asking whether the program itself is worthwhile.

KREMLIN TALKS

In Moscow, meanwhile, U.S. ambassador at large W. Averell Harriman met for three hours with Soviet Premier Kosygin at the Kremlin. After the meeting, Harriman said he had sent "significant information" on the discussions to President Johnson.

The session was the first high level meeting between the United States and Russia in Moscow in two years. Harriman refused to provide details on the talks, which were believed to have covered the Viet Nam crisis.

Diplomatic observers believed Harriman had appealed for Kremlin support in bringing about a negotiated settlement of the Viet Nam war.

U.S. Defence Secretary McNamara arrived in Saigon on a mission that could lead to a call-up of U.S. reservists to fight in Viet Nam.

LODGE ALONG
McNamara, accompanied by ambassador-designate Henry Cabot Lodge, has scheduled five days of talks in Saigon and inspection trips in the countryside.

A reserve call-up and a greatly expanded draft call are some of the results expected if McNamara finds the Vietnamese situation as serious as it appears to many observers.

Tight security measures were in force for McNamara and Lodge, who were previous targets of Viet Cong terrorists.

Premier Resigns

Premier George Papandreu, 77, resigned today after 15-minute head-on clash of wills with King Constantine who refused to accept his request for dismissal of Defence Minister Peter Geroulakias, close friend of the King's father, King Paul. Young monarch, 23, promptly named parliament president George Athanassiadis Novas to succeed Papandreu.

Hanna-Aouad

Official Heart Hardened Against Hanna the Hoax

The man without a country who turned out to have one after all, is back in Canada—at Hamilton, Ont. He is Ahmed Aouad, alias Elsayed Ahmed Hassam Elhager, but better known as Christian George Hanna. He had hoped he would be allowed to stay here but immigration officials won't allow him off his ship, even for shore leave.

Hanna is credited with pulling off one of the biggest hoaxes in Canadian immigration history. He was questioned Thursday in Hamilton by immigration officers on board the Egyptian freighter Star of Suez.

While immigration officials in Ottawa are deciding on their next move, Hanna, or Aouad, or Elhager, has been placed in the custody of the ship's master, Capt. M. M. Ghaleb.

Aouad found a haven in Canada for 18½ months until then immigration minister Ellen Fairclough ordered his deportation in October, 1958.

The slight, swarthy and illiterate laborer arrived at Port Alberni in December, 1956, as a stowaway aboard the Norwegian freighter Gudveig.

He told a story of more than a year of lonely exile on the high seas as a stateless person and sought permission to remain in Canada.

He was supported by thousands of Canadians after they heard his story of world wandering. He received free legal help, money, job offers, and three Vancouver women offered to marry him if it would help his cause.

world's wandering waifs until Canada took him in."

In June, 1957, he checked into the Victoria YMCA, after working on a tug out of Vancouver for three months, but apparently he didn't stay long.

Later he had several brushes with the law in Vancouver. He was convicted of intoxication in a public place.

Mariner Snaps Red Planet

Mariner's best photo should be 100 times better than those taken through earth telescopes, and should show objects as small as 1 1/2 miles across.

POOREST ANGLE

Picture No. 1, as the shot made from the greatest distance and poorest angle, presumably is poorest of the lot.

The first shot showed no evidence of life or the famed "canals" that some astronomers say they have seen.

QUESTION OF LIFE

The question of life on Mars has long intrigued man, but Mariner's pictures were not expected to detect life if it exists unless the evidence of it is of extreme size—such as canals.

Leighton pointed out something apparent in the bright desert area. There was one long, dark smudge some 30 to 50 miles long.

He said it could be either a prominence or a depression.

A long narrow streak across the frame he attributed to failure of a signal in transmission.

"This is certainly not one of the canals," he said, laughing.

Leighton said the picture showed the edge of Mars as very sharp, indicating few if any large mountain ranges in that area.

DESERT ELYSIUM

An enlargement of the first frame showed the desert Elysium as a vast area surrounded by small hills and wide, dark smudges. Leighton did not explain what if any significance these details might have.

"As you can tell it is hard to see anything at all in this picture but we are overjoyed to get it," he said.

Earlier, a panel of scientists reported on some of Mariner

4's non-photographic findings. They said that instruments indicated:

WEAK FIELD

It has almost no magnetic field.

Due to so weak a field, it has not trapped a ring of intense radiation from the sun, as earth has.

But background radiation from the sun and outer space is much higher than earth's. The thin atmosphere of Mars doesn't screen radiation as does earth's thick blanket of air.

EXPECTS LIFE

Dr. William H. Pickering, head of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory which built and guided Mariner, asked if he was discouraged by Mariner's findings, replied at a press conference:

"No. I've always thought that we would find some form of life on Mars and I'm still looking forward to seeing the pictures and to landing vehicles on Mars in the next few years."

Pickering said he expects Mariner to relay about 20 pictures of Mars' surface, a process that will take 10 days.

ANCIENT MYSTERY

Scientists hoped the pictures would provide an answer to the ancient mystery of whether the planet most like earth harbors life.

The pictures are expected to be 100 times better than those from earth telescopes and show objects as small as 1 1/2 miles across.

For a time Wednesday night while the 575-pound spacecraft was whizzing within 5,600 miles of the red planet's surface, scientists feared its television camera's tape recorder was faulty. But the picture signals came in Thursday just as planned.

STARTED LATE

Pickering said the first of the camera's 22 frames started late, hence photographed all of Mars' surface instead of only part. This, he said, probably means that two or more of the last frames were made on Mars' dark side and would be useless.

Convention Summary

Hub-speaking minority enjoys in Quebec.

This resolution, given unanimous approval, was one of many processed by the convention on the topical, touchy issues of federal-provincial relations and biculturalism.

Another late resolution Thursday advocated a "full system of schooling in the French language where a sufficient number of French-speaking Canadians exist to make this possible."

READY TO FIGHT

The NDP party, said Mr. Douglas in his final speech to the convention, now has the platform and purpose that will unite all Canadians in a common goal and, given the money, the party will fight the "toughest, most effective and most aggressive campaign" in its history.

The convention approved a raft of resolutions during its session and the majority reaffirmed the party's stand on social security, housing, medical care, guaranteed incomes, and broad social programs.

One resolution was approved that would legalize instructions in birth control.

But throughout the four days, federal-provincial planning and national unity easily dominated the debates—except for Wednesday when the United States was verbally bombed for its actions in Viet Nam.

'Homeless Man' Back

and then of committing an indecent act involving a 23-year-old Vancouver housewife.

Mrs. Fairclough ordered him deported.

He was flown to Lebanon where he was shortly afterwards sentenced to two months in jail for a criminal offence in Beirut.

It was while he was in prison that Egyptian, U.S., Lebanese and Canadian authorities eventually learned he was an Egyptian citizen named Aoud.

At 1:30 a.m. Thursday a reporter for the Hamilton Spectator answered a phone call and picked up Aoud in downtown Hamilton. He subsequently told the reporter he had jumped ship in Vancouver and had made his way to Hamilton.

"The immigration never gave me a chance to stay in Canada," he said. "But maybe it's different now. A new flag, a new government... maybe different."

He added: "Yes, I want to stay in Canada. I never forget Canada; some people here were very kind to me."

He identified newspaper file pictures of himself and checked when asked about a brief visit to Montreal in 1963 before immigration authorities picked him up and again deported him.

"Jails, jails, jails," he said. "I've been in so many jails. But I'm a free man now."

He spent the rest of the night in a downtown hotel but left shortly before 8 a.m.

Immigration officers later found him on board the Star of Suez which docked in Hamilton Harbor Sunday and is still discharging cargo. He had seaman's papers identifying him as Elmagdy Ahmed Hassan Elmagdy.

He denied at first that he was Aoud. Immigration officers, however, pointed to a scar on his forehead, his pierced ear, and a department file photograph.

The Star of Suez's next port of call is not known. Under the terms of Aoud's original deportation order, which is still in effect, Aoud cannot step on Canadian soil.

Your Good Health

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: My sister has given me a month's supply of pills, claiming they are safe to take after menopause. I took about eight of the pills, but have stopped now until I hear from you. Did I do wrong?—A.P.

The pill you named is an excellent preparation containing estrogen (the female hormone) and I think we can be rather sure that you haven't harmed yourself.

Nevertheless, I can't conscientiously tell you to continue taking them without the advice, and follow-up, of your doctor.

Your doctor might very well

tell you to go on taking these same pills, or some like them, but he wouldn't do it on any such flimsy basis as saying that they are "safe for anyone."

The first question is: Do you need them? Is there going to be any benefit to you?

Second: How much should you be taking?

SIDE EFFECTS

Third: Suppose some side effects develop? Would you recognize them, and know what to do about them? Side effects (unwanted additional effects from a medication) are possible from just about every known medication.

Your protection against side effects is what I referred to as "follow-up" by your doctor. He should examine you at intervals to see whether any side effects are threatening, whether the medication should be continued or should be stopped, or because it is no longer needed, or to see whether your dosage should be changed.

MEDICATION

Passing around medicine that happens to suit one person is not a safe thing to do, because the medication may be entirely wrong for another person. This isn't just my advice. It is also the law. The government insists that any medication of such potency must be distributed on prescription. The purpose of prescriptions? To make certain that a doctor is on guard to see that no harm can come from too much use of a drug, too long a continuation of it, or any unusual sensitivity to it.

Dear Dr. Molner: If a person in the family dies of cancer, what can be done with her beautiful clothes? Should they be dry cleaned, or washed and given to someone, or be burned? I would not want anyone else to get this disease.—S.A.

No, don't burn such clothing. Use it, or give it to someone to use. There is no danger. Cancer is not caused by germs.

Naturally the clothing should be dry cleaned or washed just for the sake of cleanliness, but not because it has anything to do with cancer.

Johnson Orders Budget Cut

McNamara also will run upon the sheer logic of the mathematical warnings of his own generals.

The generals now believe that at least a superiority of five-to-one is needed to beat the Viet Cong.

510,000 MEN NEEDED

With Viet Cong strength at 162,000, this means that the allied side should now be fielding 810,000 men.

The allied forces are already about 100,000 men below this strength. If Viet Cong numbers continue to increase at their present rate, the same reasoning would require 400,000 American servicemen in Viet Nam by Christmas.

Two Viet Cong ambushes near Saigon and Da Nang Thursday inflicted heavy losses on Vietnamese forces.

Thirty miles south of Da Nang, where the major U.S. air base in Viet Nam is located, the Viet Cong attacked a strong government force.

DEAD

First reports said government losses were heavy, but official U.S. spokesmen later described them as moderate. They said the Viet Cong had lost 56 dead.

In Saigon, Brig.-Gen. Nguyen Huu Co, South Viet Nam's war minister, announced the mobilization of all men and women of military age into a "reserve army," the official Vietnamese press agency said.

The agency quoted Co as saying all women between 20 and 25 years of age and men from 18 to 45 will be inducted into the reserve army "because in this grave situation no citizen can afford to stand outside the anti-Communist ranks."

Pep Pill Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson Thursday signed a bill imposing stiff federal penalties on the illegal manufacture and sale of "good pills" and "pep pills." Johnson described as a "vicious business" the black marketing in the production and sale of amphetamines (stimulants) and barbiturates (depressants).

Island Crime Spree Nipped at Nanaimo

NANAIMO—Crime spree came to an end Wednesday when police officers on patrol stopped a break-in at Harewood Court at Bruce and Fifth.

Appearing in police court was John Edward Williams, 29, Powell River, who pleaded guilty to seven charges of breaking and entering.

REMANDED
He was remanded to July 23 for a pre-sentence report.

The charges were laid after a series of break-ins which started at Port Alberni, June 22 at Calgary East Service, 1001 Redford Street, then continued on July 12 at Duncan Tanco on the Trans-Canada Highway at Duncan; July 13, Kemp's Service Station, 300 Comox Road, Nanaimo; Nanaimo Home Service, Terminal Avenue, Nanaimo; Trans-Canada BA Service, Wellington; July 14, Valley East Service, 423 Third Street, Port Alberni, and July 15 at Harewood.

Williams pleaded guilty to all seven break-ins.
The same methods were used in every instance, with the front door being forced and the tiller and cigarette machines rifled.
Also charged in connection with break-ins was Allan Verner

Forberg, 234 Third St., Port Alberni, aged 22.
Magistrate Stan Wardill refused to grant him bail and he was remanded without plea until July 22.

Nanaimo-Courtenay

Smashing Month

NANAIMO—Concern was expressed by S/Egt. Frank Slater, head of RCMP here, at the increasing number of traffic accidents in the city.

He attributed the increase to impatient and discourteous driving, especially at intersections and traffic lights.

In a recent four-day period there have been more than 21 accidents recorded by the Nanaimo detachment, with damage in excess of $7,000.

In an attempt to curb the situation he promised radar patrols would be intensified in the future.

S/Egt. Slater also blasted jaywalking pedestrians, including merchants and their employees, who cross the street to coffee shops ignoring nearby crosswalks.

COURTENAY—RCMP have released details of traffic accidents for June, and it was to be the worst month of the year.

The new high saw 41 accidents and a total damage of $25,450.

The previous high was last January when the Comox Valley experienced worst road conditions in many years. At that time the rate of accidents reached 40, with a total of $22,024 damages. There was also one traffic fatality in January.

Logging Companies

Rules for Access

Major logging companies on the Island have set forth rules for the general public to follow when taking advantage of access over private roads on managed timberlands.

The rules:
● Check with the company involved to make sure access regulations of that firm are understood.
● Obey all company road signs.

● Be extra careful with cigarettes and matches, and light fires only in designated areas.
● Do not pass any closed gates or enter areas which are posted as "restricted."

The firms say public access to privately-managed timberlands is now the policy of most companies.

In the interest of safety, access is usually restricted to non-operating hours, and access privileges may be temporarily withdrawn in hazardous weather.

The companies claim losses through theft and damaged equipment have been high in some operations.

Companies involved include B.C. Forest Products, Crown Selterbach, Hillcrest Lumber, MacMillan-Bloedel, Powell River, Pacific Logging, Western Forest Industries, and the B.C. Forest Service.

Port Alberni

Blood Drive Short

PORT ALBERNI—The Red Cross blood donor clinic here failed to reach its 600-pint quota but committee chairman Mrs. F. G. Weaver said she was pleased with the 514-pint total for the two-day event.

"We never expect to do as well at the summer clinic as at the winter one," she said. "In January over 100 donors turned out to give their blood."

ONLY HANDFUL
The first afternoon of this week's clinic saw only a handful of donors in attendance, but the other afternoon and two evening sessions were busy. Mrs. Weaver said there were several first-time donors and a number of out-of-town people at the clinic in the Port Legion hall.

Duncan

Fast Driver Failed To Report

DUNCAN—Thomas Underwood, Duncan, pleaded guilty to two charges when he appeared before magistrate Lance Heard, Thursday.

He was fined $40 for driving without due care and attention, and a further $15 for failing to report an accident.

Police said the accident occurred July 10 about midnight on the Trans-Canada Highway near Duncan, when Mr. Underwood drove off the highway and into the ditch "for no apparent reason."

He did not report the accident but was questioned by police three days later. Underwood, admitted to police he had been driving when the accident occurred, and he said he was probably "going too fast."

Burglar Moved Fast With Hot Transport

COURTENAY—An 18-year-old Vancouver boy picked up in Lewis Park, Wednesday, carried a series of recent break-ins.

The young man was first noticed carrying a parcel which was found to contain a radio stolen recently from Volkswagen Sales.

He also admitted arriving on the Island in a car stolen in Burnaby, and which he abandoned at Miracle Beach July 1.

He admitted a series of thefts in Campbell River, including a boat which he used to return to Courtenay. The youth was using the boat as his base of operations for break-ins in various homes and boats on the slough.

When he was picked up he had in his possession a glass cutter and various instruments to aid in illegal entry. He also admitted being broke.

International Village: Check In Then Dash for Lake

Mexico's Jose Muriel, 11, brings big load

Mass dash for cooling Shawnigan Lake first item on agenda for newly-arrived international 'villagers'

Torstein and Yoshiko

Jose, Olga, Pilar

They Trade, Learn Friendship

By BILL STAYDAL

"Sign?" asked a grinning little Japanese girl, holding out her autograph book to a youngster from Guatemala. He signed, and two more young world citizens had been brought together by Children's International Summer Village. A unique month in the lives of 32 children began this Thursday, as a Dayliner clicked north from Victoria to Strathcona Lodge School for Girls on balmy Shawnigan Lake.

Chums Already

They have names like Torstein and Yoshiko, Jose and Olga, Eric and Andy, Pilar, Maria, Susan and Sally. From Norway and Japan and six countries between they come, speaking five languages. They are chums already, and in a month they will be friends.

Since 1961, when the organization was founded by a Cincinnati psychiatrist, Children's International Summer Village has raised more than 2,000 youngsters in summer-time youth communities.

Its purpose is simply to teach international fellowship to the young. None of the children at Shawnigan Lake, or any other of this year's nine summer villages, is more than 11 years old.

No Prejudices

"At 11, you have no prejudices yet," explains village director John Berges, a high school teacher from Kitchener, Ont.

After 14 summers, the project is out of the experimental stage and is becoming self-perpetuating.

While Ludwig Gressler, an Oslo airline executive, is shepherding his four young Norwegianians at Shawnigan Lake, his daughter Turid, 7, is leading another group in Japan.

Repaying Trip

Rich Reichard, 15, a junior counselor from Kitchener, is working as a volunteer, his way of repaying his own trip to a summer village in Indiana in 1963.

Four children each from eight countries have moved into a student dormitory at Strathcona Lodge. Besides Japan, Guatemala and Norway, also represented are the U.S., Denmark, Mexico, the Philippines and Canada.

Canadians

The Canadian youngsters are Clair Denninger of Lake Cowichan, Andrew Petter and Trudy Clark of Victoria, and Wendy Walsh of Nanaimo. Wendy missed the opening because she is sick at home.

As it has for thousands of years, trade quickly broke the language barrier. It started on the Dayliner, and minutes after the unpacking at Shawnigan Lake, blond Scandinavians were blowing noses on Philippine conch shells.

Adult counselor Priscilla "Prizi" Aragon, a Manila architect, reported that her four little Filipinos bought so many trading souvenirs in Hawaii that the party had to acquire an additional suitcase.

Trade Clothes

"They even traded their clothes," she said. "As soon as they open their bags they start trading, and there's no use trying to interfere," said director John Berges.

"Trading is the easiest way for them to feel each other out."

For the next 30 days the village will rise at 7:30 a.m. and begin the day with flag-raising, making beds and cleaning rooms.

A regular morning will see the youngsters taking part in arts and crafts, games and swimming. After lunch they have 75 minutes to themselves.

An afternoon may have them hiking, holding a junior parliament or carrying on special projects.

The eight nationalities will take turns providing entertainment in the evenings.

Special events will enliven the weeks. This Sunday Indian dancers from Duncan and Victoria will perform.

The boys and girls will also visit the Butchart Gardens, tour "Victoria," and visit nearby homes. On Aug. 10 they will see Vancouver.

"They get along well from the beginning," said Mr. Berges. "They can laugh together right at the start, but toward the last they are holding serious little chats."

"The last day is the saddest one of all. They are hugging and crying — it's coming in buckets."

"You can see the bond they have formed."

Nanaimo Trustees' Brief:

Subdividers Must Give Some Land for Schools

NANAIMO—A move has been made by school board here to force subdividers in the province to set aside land for public purposes.

A brief has been prepared and submitted to the ministers of education, municipal affairs and lands and forests, requesting:

"Consideration be given to the enactment of legislation requiring all subdivisions of land filed in British Columbia in future shall make provision for the dedication to public use of a stated percentage of the land, without cost to the provincial government or other public bodies."

CAUGHT IN SQUEEZE

Recently Nanaimo School Board was caught in a squeeze when C.I.L. Ltd. disposed of a 90-acre tract off Departure Bay Road.

The board decided a school was needed in the subdivision to handle the resulting pupils, but the subdivider demanded a price in excess of $8,000 an acre, or $600,000 for a 7.3 acre school site.

In its brief the board estimated the undeveloped price of the site at $23,000 dollars and "the vendor has described the difference as development cost and ignored our protest that, for this tract, no development cost is needed; we are willing to install our own facilities."

'JUST PROFIT'

"We have seen no evidence that the difference is anything but profit."

The brief said the board is not looking for government assistance in this particular negotiation, but "the problem is a real one, an expensive diversion of public funds, and surely happens frequently in other districts."

Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario, New Brunswick, Newfoundland, and Prince Edward Island all have some form of legislation forcing subdividers to set aside land for schools, or some other form of public use.

School board has suggested not less than 10 per cent of a subdivision would be a realistic portion to set aside.

Traffic Death

Vancouver Man Ruled Careless

NANAIMO—A man who worked 12 hours welding in Port Alberni then came off work and drove 30 miles to Nanaimo, told an inquest jury last night how the journey ended in a crash that killed a 61-year-old man.

Michael Pek, 4850 Connaught Drive, Vancouver, limped to the stand and described an accident at Bowen Road and the Island Highway last Dec. 3.

IN HOSPITAL

Pek was injured in the accident, and the original inquest Dec. 13 was adjourned to last night because Mr. Pek's injuries kept him in hospital until July 9.

The jury found Mr. Pek "failed to exercise necessary care and attention while approaching the intersection."

REGINA MAN

Gordon Scott of Regina was injured in the accident and died Dec. 11.

Two witnesses at his December 11 inquest hearing said Pek's signal light was flashing as he approached the intersection.

LEFT STOP SIGN

Mrs. Scott, driver of the car in which her husband was a passenger, pulled away from a stop sign and was hit by Pek's car.

But Pek denied his signal light was flashing. He said he was 30 feet from the Scott car before he noticed it pulling out.

An amber light was flashing in Pek's direction, as he drove south on the Island Highway.

School Bylaw Passes In Campbell River

CAMPBELL RIVER — Voters in this school district have approved a $1,736,130 school referendum by a 64 per cent majority. With only two out-of-contact polls to be heard from, the vote was 369 in favor, 207 against in Thursday's balloting.

The money will provide buying of future school sites, and school construction.

Shoplifters Cry When Police Come

COURTENAY—RCMP here have broken up a well-organized band of shoplifters, with the apprehension of the leader and two members of the gang.

Caught while engineering a scheme to steal pens from a super market, were the eight-year-old leader and two helpers age five and six.

The would-be thieves dissolved in tears when confronted by police, and were taken home to parents.

Cars Victim Flown Out

COMOX—A mercy flight by an RCAF plane took car accident victim Bruce Jowsey from here to Vancouver hospital Thursday. He was suffering internal injuries.

Barge Delivery

Five Markets Invited In Gas Bid

By PATRICK O'NEILL
Island Editor

A multi-million-dollar natural gas system, brought to Vancouver Island by barge, is proposed for five Vancouver Island centres and Powell River.

The Island towns are Courtenay, Ladysmith, Duncan, Port Alberni and Alberni. The company promoting the natural gas system is Cyrogenic Enterprises Limited of Vancouver.

The firm goes before the Public Utilities Commission in August, to get permission to bring gas by barge and release it into pipelines to serve these communities.

Company representative John Montgomery said Victoria and Nanaimo are not definitely in the plans at present.

"We don't feel we are at that stage yet," Mr. Montgomery said Thursday in a telephone conversation from Vancouver.

B.C. Hydro distributes gas in Victoria and Nanaimo.

"If they requested that we supply gas, we would be most happy too," Mr. Montgomery commented.

COMPANY'S GOAL

But for now, the company is shooting for natural gas systems in the Alberni Valley, Duncan, Ladysmith, Courtenay and Powell River.

Mr. Montgomery pointed out some of the company's plans cannot be disclosed before the hearing.

The amount that has been disclosed, was made public in an effort to get support from Ladysmith and Duncan councils for the company's PUC application.

The plan calls for a $7,000,000 operation, with gas coming to the Island in cold storage tanks, then put into regular storage tanks, vaporized as required, and piped into the community gas system.

20-YEAR FRANCHISE

These systems would be installed at no cost to the communities; the company would require a 20-year franchise to build the systems for communities and supply the gas.

A three-month supply of gas would be on hand at all times in each community. The natural gas would be available to everyone who wanted it in a community.

The Vancouver plant, which would supply Island points, would be built by September of next year if the PUC approves.

After the system itself is installed by the company, communities would own it.

Hook-up charges for residents would be about $35 a house, and natural gas prices would be competitive with those in Vancouver.

Johnson Wants Economy Put Into Fighting Trim

From UPI, Reuters
WASHINGTON — President Johnson Thursday ordered administration officials to conduct a major overhaul of the new national budget, getting the U.S. economy in trim for the South Vietnamese War.

Johnson requested department heads and fiscal officials composing a special task force on government cost reduction to cut proposed spending in the budget because of rising costs of the war and new federal programs for education, medical care and housing.

MET TASK FORCE

After the president met with the task force, the White House made public the text of his remarks. The meeting was called to discuss the budget for fiscal 1967, which goes to Congress in January.

Johnson gave these instructions to cabinet officers, agency heads and their budget planners:

● "Hold no program sacred. No program—no matter how long established—should be free of a cold and searching examination. Let me worry about the political problems—I'll make those decisions. Some decisions may be unpopular for a time, but sanity and sense will be far more popular in the long run."

● Real savings are going to come from reducing or eliminating obsolete programs. While I do want you to find more efficient ways of running existing programs, I don't want you to concentrate so heavily on that aspect that you refrain from asking whether the program itself is worthwhile.

KREMLIN TALKS

In Moscow, meanwhile, U.S. ambassador at large W. Averell Harriman met for three hours with Soviet Premier Kosygin at the Kremlin. After the meeting, Harriman said he had sent "significant information" on the discussions to President Johnson.

The session was the first high level meeting between the United States and Russia in Moscow in two years. Harriman refused to provide details on the talks, which were believed to have covered the Viet Nam crisis.

Diplomatic observers believed Harriman had appealed for Kremlin support in bringing about a negotiated settlement of the Viet Nam war.

U.S. Defence Secretary McNamara arrived in Saigon on a mission that could lead to a call-up of U.S. reservists to fight in Viet Nam.

LODGE ALONG

McNamara, accompanied by ambassador-designate Henry Cabot Lodge, has scheduled five days of talks in Saigon and inspection trips in the countryside.

A reserve call-up and a greatly expanded draft call are some of the results expected if McNamara finds the Vietnamese situation as serious as it appears to many observers.

Tight security measures were in force for McNamara and Lodge, who were previous targets of Viet Cong terrorists.

Earth Probe From Mars?

CANBERRA (AP)—A mysterious glowing object—hovering near Canberra airport while the U.S. Mariner space probe was taking pictures of Mars—has baffled experts in Canberra. Air traffic control officers and other expert aircraft observers said they spotted the object Thursday.

Six members of the traffic control tower crew said it hung suspended at about 5,000 feet for 40 minutes. When the sun glinted off it, it became clearly visible, they said. It disappeared when an air force plane was sent out to identify it.

PASADENA, Calif.—Marvellous Mariner 4 sent Earth its first closeup snapshot of the mysterious planet Mars, and began transmitting a second picture Thursday.

A fantastically weak but steady stream of radio signals carried the photograph bit-by-bit more than 134,000,000 miles through space—a process so delicate it took 8 hours, 35 minutes to transmit a single picture.

Within minutes, a project spokesman said, "We can confirm—repeat confirm—that contrast is being seen" in the early lines of the second photograph.

10,500 MILES

It was taken from an altitude of 10,500 miles and showed an area about 200 miles square.

An enlargement showed a triangular area in the desert's centre.

There were several smudges, or blotchy areas.

HISTORIC PHOTO

Dr. R. B. Leighton describing the historic first photo at a press conference Thursday night in the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, said scientists expect to have difficulties with the Mariner pictures because:

● "Mars has a flat, low-contrast surface, which is difficult to photograph."

● "The side of Mars we are observing is considered to be one of the most difficult for seeing details."

● "The camera has a certain amount of fog in it—reducing the contrast. This will render pictures somewhat more difficult in the processing stage."

Several of the camera's scan lines failed somehow, causing streaks across the frame.

SHOWED SLIDES

Dr. Leighton showed slides of the first Mars picture and said that what appeared in the picture to be a slight haze over the rim of the planet may have been "some kind of fog in the camera."

BETTER PICTURES

Experts hope a total of 20 pictures will be received in a 10-day period, with the shots getting progressively better due to closer proximity to the planet and an improving camera angle.

Prescription for Unity

Douglas Pledges 'Fight of Life'

TORONTO (CP) — The New Democratic Party ended a four-day convention Thursday with a new prescription for national unity and a declaration from leader T. C. Douglas that the party will put up the fight of its life in the next election campaign.

The 800 delegates, who came to the national convention buoyed up by recent by-election successes, completed their four days of deliberations with a standing ovation for Mr. Douglas, who was re-elected for another two-year term without a dissenting voice.

And the business ended as it started—on national unity.

A final resolution said Canada faces the gravest crisis in her history. It added:

"In this crisis the New Democratic Party proposes that Canada should adopt a new and dynamic approach to Confederation which will balance a strong federal framework of leadership with an expanded opportunity for provincial and regional development."

And, for the second time in the convention, Quebec was singled out for special treatment.

"A Canadian constitution must recognize, clarify and define the special status of Quebec as the guardian of the French language, tradition and culture and guarantee to French-speaking minorities throughout Canada the same constitutional rights as the English."

Scotsman Pays—Calls Tune

TORONTO (CP) — A Scotsman paid the piper and called the tune as well as the New Democratic Party convention here Thursday.

John Robertson, 36, who came to Canada 14 years ago from Dundee, Scotland, was linked at delegate David Middleton of Toronto who applauded Wednesday when Adlai Stevenson's death was announced.

So Mr. Robertson hired for $20 a piper in full kilt regalia and had him play lunchtime lament in the convention lobby.

"I did it to teach a small lesson to people," Mr. Robertson said. "People should respect the dead."

Official Heart Hardened Against Hanna the Hoax

The man without a country who turned out to have one after all, is back in Canada—at Hamilton, Ont. He is Ahmed Aouad, alias Elsayed Ahmed Hassam Elnager, but better known as Christian George Hanna. He had hoped he would be allowed to stay here but immigration officials won't allow him off his ship, even for shore leave.

Hanna is credited with pulling off one of the biggest hoaxes in Canadian immigration history. He was questioned Thursday in Hamilton by immigration officers on board the Egyptian freighter Star of Suez.

While immigration officials in Ottawa are deciding on their next move, Hanna, or Aouad, or Elnager, has been placed in the custody of the ship's master, Capt. M. M. Ghaleb.

Aouad found a haven in Canada for 18½ months until then immigration minister Ellen Fairclough ordered his deportation in October, 1958.

The slight, swarthy and illiterate laborer arrived in Port Alberni in December, 1954, as a stowaway aboard the Norwegian freighter Gudveig.

He told a story of more than a year of lonely exile on the high seas as a stateless person and sought permission to remain in Canada.

He was supported by thousands of Canadians after they heard his story of world wandering. He received free legal help, money, job offers, and three Vancouver women offered to marry him if it would help his cause.

Finally he was allowed to remain. One newspaper called him "one of the

until Canada took him in." In June, 1957, he checked into the Victoria YMCA, after working on a tug out of Vancouver for three months, but apparently he didn't stay long.

Later he had several brushes with the law in Vancouver. He was convicted of intoxication in a public place.

Premier Resigns

Premier George Papandreu, 77, quit Thursday after 15-minute head-on clash of wills with King Constantine who refused to accept his request for dismissal of Defence Minister Peter Garofalias, close friend of the King's father, King Paul. Young monarch, 25, promptly named parliament president George Athanasiadis Novas to succeed Papandreu.
